Visualizing Sustainable Planning

Gerhard Steinebach,Subhrajit Guhathakurta,Hans Hagen,2009-06-17 we are a part of the current discussions of global recession in the media alerts us to the occasional perils of the globalized economic system The globally dispersed intricately integrated and hyper complex socio economic ecological system is difficult to analyze comprehend and communicate without effective visualization tools Given that planners are at the frontlines in the effort to prepare as well as build resilience in the impacted communities appropriate visualization tools are indispensable for effective planning Second planners have largely been slow to incorporate the advances in visualization research emerging from other domains of inquiry The research on visualizing 3 dimensional environments have now entered the mainstream of computer science with a number of highly cited articles Other disciplines such as graphic design geography and cartography have also lead in the development of new forms of vi alization and communication both conceptually and technologically In contrast the literature on modeling and visualization in planning has relied heavily on g graphic information systems GIS tools that continue to provide two dimensional spatial maps in formats not significantly different from those of a decade ago This is not to suggest that research on planning support systems and GIS have been stagnant Integrated models of transportation land use environment have become more sophisticated and several operational models are currently in use Regardless visualization research in planning has not kept pace with these developments This volume attempts to redress this gap in the planning literature Integrating Gender into Transport Planning Christina Lindkvist Scholten,Tanja Joelsson,2019-02-06 This edited collection brings together feminist research on transport and planning from different epistemologies with the intention to contribute to a more holistic transport planning practice With a feminist perspective on transport policy and planning the volume insists on the political character of transport planning and policy and challenges gender blindness in a policy area that impacts the everyday lives of women men girls and boys The chapters discuss everyday mobility as an embodied and situated activity in both conceptual and theoretical ways and suggest practical tools for change The contributions of this collection are threefold integrating gender research and transport planning combining quantitative and qualitative gender research perspectives and methods and highlighting the need to acknowledge the politicization of transport planning and transport practice
