

How to Make COMPOST

1

Choose a place

Ideal compost area is a dry, shady spot near a water source, with dimensions of 3 x 3 x 3 feet.

2

Add the ingredients

The ingredients are those rich in carbon (brown materials) and those rich in nitrogen (green materials). Make sure large materials are chopped or shredded.

3

Add water as needed

Make sure the pile stays moist, but not too wet (it should feel like a damp sponge).

4

Keep things moving

Turn your compost mixture to add air to the mix. This helps speed up the composting process.

5

Wait a while

When the compost no longer gives off heat and becomes dry, brown and crumbly, it's fully cooked and ready to be fed to the garden.

Barton, Marcus Grant, Richard Guise, 2021-06-29 Shaping Neighbourhoods is unique in combining all aspects of the spatial planning of neighbourhoods and towns whilst emphasising positive outcomes for people's health and global sustainability. This new edition retains the combination of radicalism, evidence-based advice and pragmatism that made earlier editions so popular. This updated edition strengthens guidance in relation to climate change and biodiversity, tackling crises of population health that are pushing up health care budgets but have elements of their origins in poor place spatial planning such as isolation, lack of everyday physical activity and respiratory problems. It is underpinned by new research into how people use their localities and the best way to achieve inclusive, healthy, low carbon settlements. The guide can assist with understanding the principles for planning healthy and sustainable neighbourhoods and towns, planning collaborative and inclusive processes for multi-sectoral working, developing know-how and skills in matching local need with urban form, discovering new ways to integrate development with natural systems, designing places with character and recognising good urban form. Whether you are a student faced with a local planning project, a public health professional, planner, urban designer or developer involved in new development or regeneration, a council concerned with promoting healthy and sustainable environments or a community group wanting to improve your neighbourhood, you will find help here. The Green Office Manual Wastebusters Ltd, 2000
