The Pleader Len Murray, 2012-12-07 Len Murray described by a High Court judge as the most respected pleader of his generation practised as a solicitor in Glasgow for over 40 years As part of a triumvirate of top lawyers based in the city during its period of renaissance he built up one of the most respected law practices in the country Among the benchmark cases with which Murray was involved was that of Tony Miller one of the last people to be hanged in Scotland Despite a desperate appeal by Murray the 19 year old was sent to his death on 22 December 1960 In his candid account Murray describes both the legal arguments and the personal effect the case had on him Murray was also involved in bringing the Nazi war criminal Antanas Gecas to justice after his discovery in Edinburgh he was the only solicitor ever to be retained by both Rangers and Celtic footballers who were accused of assaulting each other during a match at Ibrox and he made a cheeky defence of famous Beatle Paul McCartney who was arrested on drugs charges The Pleader recounts these and many more tales of the courts and the characters who inhabited them whether they sat on the bench or stood in the dock Reluctant to go public until now Murray has always upheld the simple tenet that client confidentiality is paramount His decision to publish his memoirs at this time reflects a feeling that he has a responsibility to new students of law and to old friends to put the record straight on many of the fascinating stories to come before the Scottish courts From the simplest of violations to the most serious of capital crimes he opens his amazing and hitherto secret files to the world Crime Beat, 1991
