Morton Rothstein

Aging Cancer And Cell Membranes:

Aging, Cancer, and Cell Membranes Carmia Borek, Cecilia M. Fenoglio-Preiser, Donald West King, 1980 Aging, Cancer and Cell Membranes Cecilia M. Fenoglio, 1980 Biochemical Approaches to Aging Morton Rothstein, 2012-12-02

Biochemical Approaches to Aging covers the significant research studies on the biochemical aspects of aging. This book is composed of 11 chapters that consider several factors that affect cellular aging. The opening chapters present some model systems for the study of aging using different species including mammals, nematodes, insects, and protozoa. The succeeding chapters deal with the role of free radical formation, lipid peroxidation, membranes, mitochondria, microsomes, and lysosomes in aging. These topics are followed by discussions of the DNA and RNA changes during aging, the mechanism of protein metabolism, and the alternation of proteins and enzymes. The concluding chapters examine the effect of aging on hormonal interaction and the biochemical effects of nutrition in aging. This book will prove useful to gerontologists, cell and molecular biologists, and researchers.

Interrelationship Among Aging, Cancer and Differentiation Bernard Pullman, Paul O.P. Ts'O, Edward L. Schneider, 1985-11-30. Proceedings of the Eighteenth Jerusalem Symposium on Quantum Chemistry and Biochemistry held in Jerusalem, Israel, April 29-May 2, 1985.

Nutrition in Cancer and Trauma-Sepsis F. Bozzetti, R. Dionigi, 1985-08-23 Molecular Biology of Aging Avril D. Woodhead, Anthony D. Blackett, Alexander Hollaender, 1985-10-31. It is delightful but humbling to find my face at the start of these Proceedings; there are innumerable other faces which could equally well stand there from among the band who have foregathered at every gerontology conference since the subject was launched in its present form. But I deeply appreciate being there. Gerontology did not grow by accident. Its present standing is the fruit of careful planning undertaken by European and American scientists back in the 1950s. In those days it was still a fringe science, and the conspirators had much the standing of the 1920s Interplanetary Society. The United States itself is the offspring of conspiracy; for when the results of conspiracy are beneficent, the conspirators become Founding Fathers. This has been the case with gerontology. The present meeting is especially gratifying because the papers have been recitals of normal hard science investigation. We had to get through the rigors of a long period of semantic argument and a long period of one-shot general theories before this kind of meeting, normal in all other research fields, could take place. It was also necessary to breed in the menagerie a generation of excellent investigators aware of the theoretical background but unintimidated by it, who share our conviction that human aging is comprehensible and probably controllable, and who go into the laboratory to attack specifics.

Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1980. Includes subject section, name section, and 1968-1970 technical reports.

The Elderly as Modern Pioneers Philip Silverman, 1987. Overall, one of the most competent and well-presented treatments of the subject now available. Jay Sokolovsky, University of Maryland, a valuable contribution to the field of gerontology. The volume combines interdisciplinary and cross-cultural perspectives written in a well-organized framework without sacrificing depth and comprehensive summary.
