Markets are increasingly seen as vehicles to solve problems in developing countries For example improvements in market performance make potentially important contributions to achieve the Millennium Development Goals Access of smallholders to well functioning markets is increasingly expected to contribute to poverty alleviation and improvement of both food security and environmental sustainability This book presents the views of leading experts on where we stand and where we are heading in the field of markets marketing and developing countries Twenty essays in this book describe the role of marketing in achieving development goals the track record of past market policies the current functioning of value chains the roles that market institutions play to facilitate market access for smallholders as well as the potential to add value to farm produce through certification schemes new technologies or innovation systems The book is published in honour of the retirement of Aad van Tilburg one of the pioneers in the field of marketing in developing countries Early on in his career Van Tilburg recognised that improvements in the functioning of markets and marketing can be key to economic development with special reference to the livelihood of small producers and other market actors in developing countries Foreign

Agricultural Economic Report ,1974 Reforming agricultural markets in Africa Kherallah, Mylene,Delgado, Christopher L.,Gabre-Madhin, Eleni Z.,Minot, Nicholas,Johnson, Michael,2002-01-01 The long term reduction of hunger and poverty in Sub Saharan Africa remains one of the great challenges for the international development community Eliminating hunger and promoting widespread growth in the region inevitably involves agriculture given its central role in the region s economies Over the past 20 years most African governments have carried out reforms to deregulate agricultural markets and reduce the role of state enterprises How much has the state actually withdrawn from agricultural markets Have well functioning private markets emerged How successful were these reforms in boosting agricultural production economic growth and the incomes of the rural poor What lessons can we learn from the reform process The authors of this book address these questions through an analysis based on an extensive review of experiences with reform focusing on three major agricultural markets fertilizer food crops and export crops They examine the historical rationales for intervention the factors contributing to reform the process of implementation and the impact of the reforms on farmers and consumers in Sub Saharan Africa The authors find that reforms have had many favorable results but that the impact has been muted by partial implementation and structural constraints They propose a new agenda for promoting the development of agricultural markets in Sub Saharan Africa identifying areas where governments can play a supportive role They argue that appropriate agricultural marketing policies and investments can improve livelihoods and the economic health of the region
