He captures the pockets of wilderness in our cities that make the area a birder's paradise from a marsh full of endangered birds wading in the reeds near the Oakland Airport to the isolated refuge of the Farallon Islands home to a quarter million seabirds and a handful of visiting scientists from Crissy Field flocked with egrets to the pasturelands birds share with cattle. His vibrant images are interspersed with text by Hannah Hindley that weaves us more deeply into relationship with our avian neighbors introducing readers to the natural history of the region to themes of interdependence and ecology and to the evolving challenges for birds in a densely settled urban environment. At the heart of these images and stories is love for the living descendants of dinosaurs as they soar and parade and awe at their ephemerality and endurance. Evans's photos highlight the wonder of a world on the wing and the rich biodiversity of Bay Area birds. San Francisco Birds James Kavanagh, Waterford Press, 1999-03. Each bird card highlights up to 150 of the area's most common breeding birds and familiar migrants. Wildlife Abstracts U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 1954. Wildlife Review, 1946.
