Saving Migrant Birds John Faaborg, 2014-02-19 Rigorous and well defended Faaborg makes many fresh and in some cases provocative points regarding management guidelines for migrant birds Kenneth Able Great Plains Research In the 1980s numerous scientific surveys documented both declining bird populations especially among Neotropical songbirds that winter in the tropics and the loss of tropical rain forest habitat Drawing the seemingly obvious conclusion scientists and environmental activists linked songbird declines to loss of tropical habitats and alerted the world to an impending ecological catastrophe Their warnings led to the establishment of the Neotropical Migratory Bird Conservation Program also known as Partners in Flight the self proclaimed largest conservation effort in history Looking back over more than a decade of efforts to save migrant birds John Faaborg offers the first serious evaluation of the state of songbird populations today the effectiveness of conservation programs such as Partners in Flight and the reliability and completeness of scientific research on migrant birds Taking neither an alarmist nor a complacent approach he shows that many factors besides habitat loss affect bird populations and that Neotropical migrants as a group are not declining dramatically though some species adapt to habitat alteration more successfully than others Faaborg's state of the art survey thus clarifies the kinds of information we will need and the conservation efforts we should undertake to ensure the long term survival of Neotropical migrant birds Presents a carefully and closely reasoned argument about the magnitude of the conservation problems facing migrant birds how we can reduce these problems and how current conservation efforts have enormous value even if there is no immediate crisis Scott K Robinson Professor and Head Department of Animal Biology University of Illinois

Restoring North America's Birds Robert A. Askins,2008-10-01 DIVThe decline of bird species in a wide range of North American habitats forests prairies shrublands mountain regions marshes and deserts has inspired two decades of intense scientific study of bird ecology and conservation But for professional scientists and amateur birders alike interpreting the results of these diverse studies is often complex and bewildering This accessible book pulls together recent research on bird species and habitats to show how basic ecological principles apply in seemingly different situations Robert A Askins provides an engaging introduction to bird ecology and concepts of landscape ecology focusing on such intriguing species as Bachman s Warbler Red Crossbill Mountain Plover and Marbled Murrelet Understanding the ancient landscapes of North America and how humans have changed them Askins says is essential for devising plans to protect and restore bird populations In addition to such obvious changes to the landscape as the clearing of forests and plowing of prairies more subtle changes also dramatically affect birds Species may disappear when we interrupt natural disturbances by suppressing wildfires or trapping out beaver or when we disrupt habitat with roads and housing developments Askins challenges some of the assumptions that underlie current conservation efforts and offers concrete recommendations based on sound ecological principles for protecting the rich natural diversity of North America s birds div Discovering Indigenous Forests at Kirstenbosch ,1997 What is an Afromontane forest Are these forests indigenous to South Africa What creatures inhabit these forests and how do they interrelate with one another The Skimmer ,1992 The Birds of Sherwood Forest: with Notes on Their Habits, Nesting, Migrations ... With Four Illustrations by the Author W. J. STERLAND,1869
