

GEOLOGIC TIME The Age of the Earth

The Earth is very old—4.5 billion years or more according to recent estimates. Most of the evidence for an ancient Earth is contained in the rocks that form the Earth's crust. The rock layers themselves—white pages in a long and complicated history—record the surface-changing events of the past, and buried within them are fossils of the earlier plants and animals that survived those organic machines that record perhaps 2 billion years ago.

Also contained in rocks are markers are radioactive elements whose changes provide Earth scientists with an atomic clock. Within these rocks, "parent" isotopes decay at a predictable rate to form "daughter" isotopes. By determining the relative amounts of parent and daughter isotopes, the age of these rocks can be ascertained.

Thus, the results of studies of rock layers (stratigraphy), and of fossils (paleontology), coupled with the ages of certain rocks as measured by atomic clocks (geochronology), reveal to us a very old Earth.
