Revolutions in

Sorrow Peter N. Stearns,2015-12-03 Huge changes have occurred in both the physical facts of death and in the cultural modes that guide our reactions to it These changes also affect policy issues ranging from punishments for crimes to birth control to the conduct of war This book explores the impacts of these changes upon both personal experience and social policy and places developments in the United States in an international comparative context The book opens with an overview of traditional patterns of death and related cultural practices in agricultural civilizations along with changes brought by Christianity Attitudes and practices in colonial America are traced and compared to other societies After setting this historical context the book examines the immense changes that occurred in the nineteenth century new cultural reactions to death expressed in changing death rituals and cemetery design the unprecedented reduction later in the century of infant mortality the relocation of death from home to hospital the redefinition of death as a taboo subject The book s final segment relates changes in death culture and experience to the contentious debates of the twentieth century over the death penalty abortion and the practice of war The book is designed to use historical and comparative perspectives to stimulate debate about the strengths and weaknesses of cultural practices and policies related to death

, The Captain's Widow of Sandwich Megan Taylor Shockley,2010-04-12 In 1852 Hannah Rebecca Crowell married sea captain William Burgess and set sail Within three years Rebecca Burgess had crossed the equator eleven times and learned to navigate a vessel In 1856 22 year old Rebecca saved the ship Challenger as her husband lay dying from dysentery The widow returned to her family s home in Sandwich Massachusetts where she refused all marriage proposals and died wealthy in 1917 This is the way Burgess recorded her story in her prodigious journals and registers which she donated to the local historical society upon her death but there is no other evidence that this dramatic event occurred exactly this way In The Captain s Widow of Sandwich Megan Taylor Shockley examines how Burgess constructed her own legend and how the town of Sandwich embraced that history as its own Through careful analysis of myriad primary sources Shockley also addresses how Burgess dealt with the conflicting

gender roles of her life reconciling her traditionally masculine adventures at sea and her independent lifestyle with the accepted ideals of the period's Victorian woman

The Nature of Grief John Archer, 2003-09-02 In this study on the evolution of grief John Archer shows that grief is a natural reaction to losses of many sorts and he proves this by bringing together material from evolutionary psychology, ethology and experimental psychology

Ethnic Variations in Dying, Death and Grief Donald P. Irish, Kathleen F. Lundquist, Vivian J. Nelsen, 2014-01-02 This volume is directed towards professionals who work in the fields concerning death and dying. These professionals must perceive the needs of people with cultural patterns which are different from the standard and dominant patterns in the United States and Canada. Accordingly, the book includes illustrative episodes and in-depth presentations of selected ethnic patterns. Each of the ethnic chapters is written by an author who shares the cultural traditions the chapter describes. Other chapters examine multicultural issues and provide the means for personal reflection on death and dying. There are also two bibliographic sections: one general and one geared towards children. The text is divided into three sections: Cross Cultural and Personal perspectives, Dying, Death and Grief Among Selected Ethnic Communities and Reflections, and Conclusions. The book is aimed at those in the fields of clinical psychology, grief therapy, sociology, nursing, social and health care work.

Continuing Bonds Dennis Klass, Phyllis R. Silverman, Steven Nickman, 2014-05-12 First published in 1996, this new book gives voice to an emerging consensus among bereavement scholars that our understanding of the grief process needs to be expanded. The dominant 20th-century model holds that the function of grief and mourning is to cut bonds with the deceased, thereby freeing the survivor to reinvest in new relationships in the present. Pathological grief has been defined in terms of holding on to the deceased. Close examination reveals that this model is based more on the cultural values of modernity than on any substantial data of what people actually do. Presenting data from several populations, 22 authors among the most respected in their fields demonstrate that the healthful resolution of grief enables one to maintain a continuing bond with the deceased. Despite cultural disapproval and lack of validation by professionals, survivors find places for the dead in their ongoing lives and even in their communities. Such bonds are not denial; the deceased can provide resources for enriched functioning in the present. Chapters examine widows and widowers, bereaved children, parents and siblings, and a population previously excluded from bereavement research: adoptees and their birth parents. Bereavement in Japanese culture is also discussed, as are meanings and implications of this new model of grief. Opening new areas of research and scholarly dialogue, this work provides the basis for significant developments in clinical practice in the field.

Harriet Beecher Stowe Joan D. Hedrick, 1995-06-01 Up to this year, I have always felt that I had no particular call to meddle with this subject. But I feel now that the time has come when even a woman or a child who can speak a word for freedom and humanity is bound to speak. Thus did Harriet Beecher Stowe announce her decision to begin work on what would become one of the most influential novels ever written. The subject she had hesitated to meddle with was slavery, and the novel of course was Uncle Tom's Cabin. Still debated today for its portrayal of African Americans and its unresolved place in the literary canon Stowe's best known work was first published in weekly installments from June 5 1851 to April 1 1852 It caused such a stir in both the North and South and even in Great Britain that when Stowe met President Lincoln in 1862 he is said to have greeted her with the words So you are the little woman who wrote the book that created this great war In this landmark book the first full scale biography of Harriet Beecher Stowe in over fifty years Joan D Hedrick tells the absorbing story of this gifted complex and contradictory woman Hedrick takes readers into the multilayered world of nineteenth century morals and mores exploring the influence of then popular ideas of true womanhood on Stowe's upbringing as a member of the outspoken Beecher clan and her eventful life as a writer and shaper of public opinion who was also a mother of seven It offers a lively record of the flourishing parlor societies that launched and sustained Stowe throughout the 44 years of her career and the harsh physical realities that governed so many women's lives The epidemics high infant mortality and often disastrous medical practices of the day are portrayed in moving detail against the backdrop of western expansion and the great social upheaval accompanying the abolitionist movement and the entry of women into public life Here are Stowe's public triumphs both before and after the Civil War and the private tragedies that included the death of her adored eighteen month old son the drowning of another son and the alcohol and morphine addictions of two of her other children The daughter sister and wife of prominent ministers Stowe channeled her anguish and her ambition into a socially acceptable anger on behalf of others transforming her private experience into powerful narratives that moved a nation Magisterial in its breadth and rich in detail this definitive portrait explores the full measure of Harriet Beecher Stowe's life and her contribution to American literature Perceptive and engaging it illuminates the career of a major writer during the transition of literature from an amateur pastime to a profession and offers a fascinating look at the pains pleasures and accomplishments of women's lives in the last century
