

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, so conceived, and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of war, and we are here to dedicate a portion of that field to the memory of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we are here to dedicate ourselves to that noble cause, to follow the great, unshaken, unshakable, who struggle for the rights of the oppressed, who have fought for the rights of the oppressed, who have fought for the rights of the oppressed, who have fought for the rights of the oppressed.

It is for us the living, rather than for the dead, that we here dedicate ourselves to that noble cause, to follow the great, unshaken, unshakable, who struggle for the rights of the oppressed, who have fought for the rights of the oppressed, who have fought for the rights of the oppressed.
