The New Politics of Science David Dickson, 1988 How science gets done in today's world has profound political repercussions since scientific knowledge through its technical applications has become an important source of both economic and military power The increasing dependence of scientific research on funding from business and the military has made questions about the access to and control of scientific knowledge a central issue in today's politics of science In The New Politics of Science David Dickson points out that the scientific community has its own internal power structures its elites its hierarchies its ideologies its sanctioned norms of social behavior and its dissenting groups And the more that science as a social practice forms an integral part of the economic structures of the society in which it is imbedded the more the boundaries and differences between the two dissolve Groups inside the scientific community for example will use groups outside the community and vice versa to achieve their own political ends In this edition Dickson has included a new preface commenting on the continuing and increasing influence of industrial and defense interests on American scientific research in the 1980s

The Machine in Me Gary Lee Downey, 2014-03-05 Gary Lee Downey investigates the body machine interface in his remarkable ethnography of computer engineers Drawing on interviews observations and personal interaction with engineers he documents the everyday power of technology's dominant image in our society a force widely regarded as monolithically progressive The Machine in Me will lead the reader to understand how deeply connected we are to The Machine and how beneficial it would be for us to really understand ourselves and machines as partially configured of the other we as part machine machines as part human In this way we can begin to see both the power and limitations of technology American Opinion, 1982 Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, 1981-05 The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists is the premier public resource on scientific and technological developments that impact global security Founded by
