

The Whispering Wind

*It's normal that you shed a tear
When first I took my leave
But know that I am happy here
No need for you to grieve*

*The beauty that's surrounding me
Would take your breath away
There's colors that I can't describe
The air's a sweet bouquet*

*Don't worry 'bout the things unsaid
There's nothing to forgive
Don't lay your heart upon the past
Just let our memories live*

*And though your earthly eyes can't see
Believe that I am there
Whenever you feel the whispering wind
Flow gently through your hair*

*I'm there when fireflies light the dark
When candles mark a year
I'm there when you are far from home
And when you need an ear*

*I'm always just a thought away
Our souls could never part
Connected for eternity
Forever in your heart*

Illumination Shaleem Dzon, 2024-10-28 On January 11, 2017, Shaleem wrote her first poem about love and loss. Fifteen months earlier, she married the love of her life, Brad. He was handsome, successful, fit and fun. And more than that, he had a zest for life like none she had ever met for he had faced childhood cancer and knew as well as anyone how precious each day was. On their one-year anniversary, after his sudden weight loss, they faced the worst oncology appointment anyone can face: Zero treatment options, zero percent chance of survival, 3-6 months. The first poem written the night he died led to a series of poems that began to chronicle the landscape she traversed emotionally, contemplatively and spiritually as she moved through the darkness of grief and despair toward the light of healing. Little did she know that six years later, on the journey toward Illumination, Rock to scatter their beloved dog's ashes in the same place she had scattered Brad's ashes, tragedy would strike again. This time it was her boyfriend, her new love, and yet once again it was fatal. This book, Illumination, a griever's journey through the darkness, is so much more than a book about grief. It is about the heart-crushing drop you to your knees experience. It is about the times when grief enters our lives with overwhelming force, consumes our thoughts, emotions and even our physical wellbeing. It is during these times of profound sorrow that we often find ourselves searching for solace, understanding and a glimmer of hope. As you read Illumination, you will touch upon things that will awaken your heart. You will experience a connection with this extraordinary woman who, through her own journey and as a poet at heart, gives fresh words to this thing called, perhaps too simply, grief. Book Review: Dr. Alan Pickering's words of acclaim: Prepare to embark on a transformative journey as you turn the pages of Illumination. Shaleem writes in such a manner as to transport you to deeper levels of thinking, feeling and understanding of the wide range of human emotions. Her surprising mastery of putting feelings into words will drive you deeper into your soul. Through poignant poetry and storytelling and profound wisdom, Shaleem's work not only captivates the mind but also touches the heart in ways that linger long after the final page is turned. She stands shoulder to shoulder with the greatest who have ever penned a poem. Prepare to be moved, enlightened and forever changed by this extraordinary treasure. The Lone Hand, 1915. Along the Odokoko River Koroma, Ahmed, 2016-02-27 Ahmed Koroma has surpassed himself in this apt description about the community of his upbringing, the myths, beliefs and mores peculiar to its spawn and denizen in this exhilarating collection of poems. He brings the rich cultural tapestry of these communities to life through an intimate literary relationship with the Odokoko Waterway and its environs. His perspective use of juxtaposition to describe diverse experiences is uncanny and leaves one with a mysterious and powerful feeling of d j vu Dr
