Education in Indigenous, Nomadic and Travelling Communities Rosarii Griffin, 2014-06-26 Education in Indigenous Nomadic and Travelling Communities provides a thorough examination of up to date case studies of educational provision to travelling communities and indigenous people in their homelands or in host countries Education is usually under utilised during phases of transition In many instances indigenous groups and travelling people including nomads do not have educational opportunities equal to that of their settled counterpart citizens For such groups this results in early school leaving high school drop out rates low school attendance and low success rates Indeed indigenous traveling and nomadic groups often begin their working life at an early age and often experience difficulties penetrating the formal employment arena In this volume international researchers analyse the internal and external factors affecting educational provision to travelling nomadic and indigenous groups A comparative examination of the issues is enabled through the global case studies including the Roma people in Europe indigenous groups in Malaysia the Gypsies of England the Travellers of Ireland the Sami nomadic people of Scandinavia and Russia as well as the Amazonian Indians of Latin America

Language of Inequality Nessa Wolfson,Joan Manes,2012-04-17 No detailed description available for Language of Inequality

Language Contact and Bilingualism René Appel,Pieter Muysken,2005 What happens sociologically linguistically educationally politically when more than one language is in regular use in a community How do speakers handle these languages simultaneously and what influence does this language contact have on the languages involved Although most people in the world use more than one language in everyday life the approach to the study of language has usually been that monolingualism is the norm. The recent interest in bilingualism and language contact has led to a number of new approaches based on research in communities in many different parts of the world. This book draws together this diverse research looking at examples from many different situations to present the topic in an easily accessible form. Language contact is looked at from four distinct perspectives. The authors consider bilingual societies, bilingual speakers' language use in the bilingual community, finally language itself: do languages change when in contact with each other? Can they borrow rules of grammar or just words? How can new languages emerge from language contact? The result is a clear, concise synthesis offering a much needed overview of this lively area of language study.
