and Gift Exchange in Eighteenth-Century Fiction Linda Zionkowski, 2016-05-26 This book analyzes why the most influential novelists of the long eighteenth century centered their narratives on the theory and practice of gift exchange Throughout this period fundamental shifts in economic theories regarding the sources of individual and national wealth along with transformations in the practices of personal and institutional charity profoundly altered cultural understandings of the gift's rationale purpose and function Drawing on materials such as sermons conduct books works of political philosophy and tracts on social reform Zionkowski challenges the idea that capitalist discourse was the dominant influence on the development of prose fiction Instead by shifting attention to the gift system as it was imagined and enacted in the formative years of the novel the volume offers an innovative understanding of how the economy of obligation shaped writers' portrayals of class and gender identity property and community Through theoretically informed readings of Richardson's Clarissa and Sir Charles Grandison Burney's Cecilia and The Wanderer and Austen's Mansfield Park and Emma the book foregrounds the issues of donation reciprocity indebtedness and gratitude as it investigates the conflicts between the market and moral economies and analyzes women's position at the center of these conflicts As this study reveals the exchanges that eighteenth century fiction prescribed for women confirm the continuing power and importance of gift transactions in the midst of an increasingly commercial culture The volume will be essential reading for scholars of the eighteenth century novel economic literary criticism women and gender studies and book history
