

more fully upon the investigation of these interesting and important sympathies at present. The pathological states of the blood-vessels and the circulating fluids contained in them, and their influence upon the mental faculties, are no less interesting, and remain to be considered on a future occasion.

In conclusion, I would urge that those journals which have seen fit to transfer these articles to their columns, would call the attention, more particularly, of general practitioners, to the importance of collecting facts upon the subject to which they relate. The sympathetic relations, which have therein been dwelt upon, would then be set forth more prominently to those, to whom these investigations appertain, equally with the medical psychologist. The future elevation of medical science, we are fully convinced, is more intimately connected with this hitherto almost unexplored field of examination.

CASES OF INSANITY ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE PATHOLOGY OF GENERAL PARALYSIS. BY JOSEPH WORKMAN, M. D., MEDICAL SUPERINTENDENT OF THE PROVINCIAL LUNATIC ASYLUM, TORONTO, CANADA WEST.

Read before the Association of Medical Superintendents of American Institutions for the Insane.

THE form of cerebral disease which the following cases are intended to illustrate is that which Esquirol has, somewhat inappropriately, designated general paralysis. This condition of the muscular system is but rarely met with in the insane of this country, unless at the very eve of dissolution. Partial paralysis, and that confined generally to one of the lower extremities, with a perceptible decrease of power in the muscles of one arm, more obvious in the flexors, is indeed of too frequent occurrence. Defect in the muscular power of the tongue is an almost invariable concomitant of the disease, or very frequently its distant outrider.

The cases which will be described have all occurred in male
