Poker Dean Brown,2018-09-17 When Dean told me he was writing a book about tournament poker and asked if I would read it the answer was easy for me See I have learned throughout the years of playing an average of seven live tournaments a week that only one thing matters and that is results When I started exclusively playing tournament poker it did not take long to figure out who ran deep in the majority of tournaments they played and who was making money doing it I am a witness to his finding ways to improve his poker game in order to keep with the new styles and different type players that have evolved In doing this Dean has become a truly dynamic tournament poker player never having to rely on one style of play in order to get his opponents chips He has perfected using his image and ability to read others and combined it with the basic math of poker to make him a beast in the game If being honest no one wants him at their tournament poker table No matter the skill or size of the field he knows how to run deep in poker tournaments Most importantly I have watched him consistently make tournament poker profitable to him for almost a decade There are a lot of good poker players out here but there are a select few that have a chance to win every tournament they enter no matter the size of the field the amount of the buy in and the level of competition I can honestly say that Dean is in the 1 percent of the 1 percent since his results and his runs through deep fields so consistently are second to none My friend Daniel and I nicknamed Dean Getting Started in Tournament Poker Dean Brown,2018-10-04 If you are interested in getting started in the exciting game of tournament poker you need this book We all had to start somewhere but most tournament poker players have learned some things through the very expensive school of entry fees poker tuition It s like when you first begin to drive without instructions you can develop bad habits This is true in tournament poker also I have played in over 2 000 multi table poker tournaments It has taken a lot of study and learning but I now consistently finish at the final table 40% of the time My in the money percentage is over thirty percent these last 10 years which makes me a handsome annual profit It was over two years before I felt comfortable enough to play well consistently You do need to feel confident and comfortable in order to get your mind right I can help you with this as you learn how to consistently make your way to the final table If you learn what I am trying to teach here you will be able to develop good basic strategies in your game and have the potential of becoming a very skilled tournament poker player Well over 90% of all tournament poker players lose money So why not learn some lessons that will take you directly to that 10% of us who are making money in a sport we love If you want to learn how to comfortably and profitably get involved in tournament poker this is the best investment you can make regarding this journey Your first goal in any tournament is not just to win a big hand now and then but make it to the final table But first as I stated earlier you need to feel confident and comfortable at your table This book will help you learn to stay consistent during your entire learning experience This way you can bypass so many common mistakes most new players make
