Calendars in Antiquity Sacha Stern, 2012-09-06 Calendars were at the heart of ancient culture and society and were far more than just technical time keeping devices Calendars in Antiquity offers a comprehensive study of the calendars of ancient Mesopotamia Egypt Persia Greece Rome Gaul and all other parts of the Mediterranean and the Near East from the origins up to and including Jewish and Christian calendars in late Antiquity In this volume Stern sheds light on the political context in which ancient calendars were designed and managed Set and controlled by political rulers calendars served as expressions of political power as mechanisms of social control and sometimes as assertions of political independence or even of sub culture and dissidence While ancient calendars varied widely they all shared a common history evolving on the whole from flexible lunar calendars to fixed solar schemes The Egyptian calendar played an important role in this process leading most notably to the institution of the Julian calendar in Rome the forerunner of our modern Gregorian calendar Stern argues that this common evolutionary trajectory was not the result of scientific or technical progress It was rather the result of major political and social changes that transformed the ancient world with the formation of the great Near Eastern empires and then the Hellenistic and Roman Empires from the first millennium BC to late Antiquity The institution of standard fixed calendars served the administrative needs of these great empires but also contributed to their cultural cohesion The TSQL2 Temporal Query Language Richard T. Snodgrass, 2012-12-06 Temporal databases have been an active research topic for at least fifteen years During this time several dozen temporal query languages have been proposed Many within the temporal database research community perceived that the time had come to consolidate approaches to temporal data models and calculus based query languages to achieve a consensus query language and associated data model upon which future research can be based While there were many query language proposals with a diversity of language and modeling constructs common themes kept resurfacing However the community was quite fragmented with each research project being based on a particular and different set of assumptions and approaches Often these assumptions were not germane to the research per se but were made simply because the research required a data model or query language with certain characteristics with the particular one chosen rather arbitrarily It would be better in such circumstances for research projects to choose the same language Unfortunately no existing language had attracted a following large enough to become the one of choice In April 1992 Richard Snodgrass circulated a white paper that proposed that a temporal extension to SQL be produced by the research community Shortly thereafter the temporal database community organized the ARPA NSF International Workshop on an Infrastructure for Temporal Databases which was held in Arlington TX in June 1993
