Swords and Daggers in Late Bronze Age Canaan Sarel Shalev, 2004 At the heart of this study of the history of the sword and dagger in Canaan between c 1550 and 1000 BC lies a catalogue of 190 examples all of which are illustrated The catalogue supports a detailed discussion of typology Ten types are identified by their tang and hilt shape as well as their cultural influences from Egypt and the Aegean A final synthesis considers technological and social aspects of the daggers and swords usually found as grave goods such as what they reveal about Canaanite burial customs metalworking and contact with Egypt

Broken Blade 07 Yonosuke Yoshinaga, 2013 Fragments of the Bronze Age Matthew G. Knight, 2022-02-03 The destruction and deposition of metalwork is a widely recognised phenomenon across Bronze Age Europe Weapons were decommissioned and thrown into rivers axes were fragmented and piled in hoards and ornaments were crushed contorted and placed in certain landscapes Interpretation of this material is often considered in terms of whether such acts should be considered ritual offerings or functional acts for storing scrapping and recycling the metal This book approaches this debate from a fresh perspective by focusing on how the metalwork was destroyed and deposited as a means to understand the reasons behind the process To achieve this this study draws on experimental archaeology as well as developing a framework for assessing what can be considered deliberate destruction Understanding these processes not only helps us to recognise how destruction happened but also gives us insights into the individuals involved in these practices Through an examination of metalwork from south west Britain it is possible to observe the complexities involved at a localised level in the acts of destruction and deposition as well as how they were linked to people and places This case study is used to consider the social role of destruction and deposition more broadly in the Bronze Age highlighting how it transformed over time and space
