Arachidonic Acid Metabolism And Tumor Promotion:

Arachidonic Acid Metabolism and Tumor Promotion Susan M. Fischer, Thomas J. Slaga, 1985-04-30 Prostaglandins Leukotrienes and Cancer is a multi volume series that will focus on an emerging area of cancer research In 1968 R H Williams first reported that elevated prostaglandin levels are present in human medullary carcinoma Since that time the concept that arachidonic acid metabolites may be involved in cancer has expanded to include every aspect of the disease from cell transformation through metastasis Prostaglandins and leukotrienes are generic terms used to describe a family of bioactive lipids produced from unsaturated fatty acids principally from and lipoxygenase pathways respect arachidonic acid via the cyclooxygenase tively Cyclooxygenase products consist of diverse products such as prostaglandin E₂ PGE₂ prostacyclin PGI₂ and thromboxane A₂ TXA whereas 2,2,2 lipoxygenase products consist of hydroperoxy fatty acids and mono di and tri hydroxy acids including leukotrienes The precursor fatty acids for the cyclooxygenase and lipoxygenase pathways are present in cellular phospholipids This finding established an important control point in their biosynthesis the release of substrate This occurs in response to numerous stimuli that act at the cell surface Dr Bengt Samuelsson s extensive study of the metabolism of prostaglandins indicated that they are rapidly inactivated on a single pass through pulmonary circulation Thus they cannot act as circulating hormones and appear to be made on demand in or in the vicinity of target tissues leading to the concept that prostaglandins are local hormones or autoids

Carcinogenicity Kirk T. Kitchin, 1998-10-29 Offers comprehensive coverage of currently available cancer predictors the most recent research on carcinogenicity and the design and interpretation of carcinogenicity experiments Presents mouse rat and human carcinogenicity data for the liver kidney breast cervix prostate hematopoietic system colon skin urinary bladder mouth stomach thyroid and pancreas

Prostaglandins in Cancer Research Enrico Garaci, Rodolfo Paoletti, M. Gabriella Santoro, 2012-12-06 Arachidonic acid metabolites are known to play a regulatory role in a number of biological systems in which they function as microenvironmental hormones and intracellular signal mediators One of the most exciting areas of research of these compounds is the one that studies the relationship between prostaglandins and tumor cell growth and function In the last few years there has been an extraordinary evolution of data on prostaglandins and related compounds and cancer This volume is based on papers presented at the 1986 International Conference on Prostaglandins and Cancer organized by the Italian National Research Council and the II University of Rome and held in Rome Italy in June 1986 This Conference brought together oncologists and specialists in the areas of prostaglandin chemistry biochemistry pharmacology physiology cellular and molecular biology to overview the actual state of knowledge on the role of eicosanoids in cancer and to focus on the key questions that need to be answered The picture that comes out of this book describes a very complicated network of interactions between arachidonic acid metabolites and different aspects of the complex phenomenon cancer Eicosanoids participate in carcinogenesis initiation and promotion and their relationship with tumor promoters and growth factors is well established During cancer growth different prostaglandins can have different roles in the regulation of cell proliferation and differentiation and in metastasis formation meanwhile evidence is accumulating for a possible use of some of these compounds as antineoplastic agents

Eicosanoids and the Skin Thomas Ruzicka,1990-03-30 This publication summarizes the increasing knowledge in eicosanoid research It provides a detailed overview of this rapidly expanding field The text contains sections on general aspects of arachidonic acid metabolism the role of eicosanoids in skin diseases and their biological and biochemical effects in skin Also included is a section on inhibitors of arachidonic acid metabolism with particular reference to use in dermatology New concepts covered are possible physiological role of lipoxygenase products in cutaneous wound healing restoration and maintenance of cutaneous integrity and the recently recognized protective function of prostaglandins in skin It is an invaluable resource for individuals involved with dermatology pharmacology inflammation immunology biochemistry physiology internal medicine and therapeutics

ICRDB Cancergram ,1978

Toxicology of the Human Environment Chris J Rhodes,2000-02-24 The environment in which human beings live is complex and we may encounter many different potentially toxic chemical substances during the course of our lives These xenobiotic agents may invade the living system in the form of environmental pollutants in the diet as pharmaceutically administered compounds or even as chemical weapons and it is becoming widely recognised that free radicals are often involved in this toxicity The book covers all aspects of toxic agents in the environment from their detection to their effects Final year undergraduates and postgraduates studying toxicology biochemistry cell biology or environmental science will find this book valuable reading whilst researchers in academia the pharmaceutical industry and public health laboratories will appreciate it as a comprehensive reference

Chemical Carcinogenesis and Mutagenesis II Colin S. Cooper,Philip L. Grover,2012-12-06 I have been privileged to witness and participate in the great growth of knowledge on chemical carcinogenesis and mutagenesis since 1939 when I entered graduate school in biochemistry at the University of Wisconsin Madison I immediately started to work with the carcinogenic aminoazo dyes under the direction of Professor CARL BAUMANN In 1942 I joined a fellow graduate student ELIZABETH CAVERT in marriage and we soon commenced a joyous partnership in research on chemical carcinogenesis at the McArdle Laboratory for Cancer Research in the University of Wisconsin Medical School in Madison This collaboration lasted 45 years I am very grateful that this volume is dedicated to the memory of Elizabeth The important and varied topics that are reviewed here attest to the continued growth of the fields of chemical carcinogenesis and mutagenesis including their recent and fruitful union with viral oncology I feel very optimistic about the application of knowledge in these fields to the eventual solution of numerous problems including the detection and estimation of the risks to humans of environmental chemical carcinogens and related factors
