Wilhelm II John C. G. enter had been under consideration for some time a printed itinerary was furnished to the chief of each department but quite frequently no one was able to learn anything beyond the hour of departure The Kaiser you know addressed his attendants only in monosyllables and did not even take the trouble to speak distinctly To ask repetition of a sentence or to put any question whatever would have been an unheard of breach of etiquette so nothing remained to do but to take chances and work ahead in the dark the more so as the adjutants often knew no more of his Majesty's intentions than the small stableboys who went with every imperial party to assist at tennis Especial secrecy was observed if the destination was some town or fortress in the far west or east of the Empire where after a night of travel the war lord intended to mount at five or six o'clock in the morning and attended by trumpeters and a formidable suite ride through the streets alarming the garrison About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Behind the Scenes with the Kaiser, 1888-1922, Etc Baroness von LARISCH (pseud.), 1922
