An infant from the Latin word infans meaning unable to speak or speechless is the more formal or specialised synonym for baby the very young offspring of a human The term may also be used to refer to juveniles of other organisms The term infant is typically applied to young children between one month and one year of age however definitions may vary and may include children up to two years of age When a human child learns to walk the term toddler may be used instead In British English an infant school is for children aged between four and seven As a legal term infancy continues from birth until age 18 In developed countries the average birth weight of a full term newborn is approximately 3 4 kg 7 1 2 lb and is typically in the range of 2 7 4 6 kg 6 0 10 1 lb Over the first 5 7 days following birth the body weight of a term neonate decreases by 3 7% 3 and is largely a result of the resorption and urination of the fluid that initially fills the lungs in addition to a delay of often a few days before breastfeeding becomes effective After the first week healthy term neonates should gain 10 20 grams day 3 A newborn's head is very large in proportion to the body and the cranium is enormous relative to his or her face Some newborns have a fine downy body hair called lanugo Immediately after birth a newborn's skin is often grayish to dusky blue in color As soon as the newborn begins to breathe usually within a minute or two the skin's color reaches its normal tone Newborns are wet covered in streaks of blood and coated with a white substance known as vernix caseosa which is hypothesised to act as an antibacterial barrier The newborn may also have Mongolian spots various other birthmarks or peeling skin particularly on the wrists hands ankles and feet

In Your Face David Perrett, 2017-09-16 In our daily lives in our memories and fantasies our mental worlds overflow with faces But what do we really know about this most remarkable feature of the human body Why do we have faces at all and brains that are good at reading them What do our looks say and not say about our personalities And perhaps the most compelling question of all Why are we attracted to some faces more than others In Your Face is an engaging and authoritative tour of the science of facial beauty and face perception David Perrett the pre eminent scholar in the field reveals and interprets the most remarkable findings and in the process demolishes many popular myths setting the record straight on what neuroscience and evolutionary psychology are teaching us about beauty The record is more surprising and often more unsettling than you might think

Face Perception across the Life-Span Bozana Meinhardt-Injac, Andrea Hildebrandt, 2017-03-17 Face perception is a highly evolved visual skills in humans This complex ability develops across the life span steeply rising in infancy refining across childhood and adolescence reaching highest levels in adulthood and declining in old age As such the development of face perception comprises multiple skills including sensory e g mechanisms of holistic configural and featural perception cognitive e g memory processing speed attentional control and also emotional and social e g reading and interpreting facial expression domains Whereas our understanding of specific functional domains involved in face perception is growing there is further pressing demand for a multidisciplinary approach toward a more integrated view describing how face perception ability relates to and develops with other domains of sensory and cognitive functioning In this research topic we bring together a collection of papers that provide a shot of the current state of the art of theorizing and investigating face perception from the perspective of multiple ability domains We would like to thank all authors for their valuable contributions that advanced our understanding of face and emotion perception across development

Mother Brain Chelsea Conaboy, 2022-09-13 Health and science journalist Chelsea Conaboy explodes the concept of maternal instinct and tells a new story about what it means to become a parent Conaboy expected things to change with the birth of her child What she didn't expect was how different she would feel But she would soon discover what was behind this her changing brain Though Conaboy was prepared for the endless dirty diapers the sleepless nights and the joy of holding her newborn she did not anticipate this shift in self as deep as it was disorienting Mother Brain is a groundbreaking exploration of the parental brain that untangles insidious myths from complicated realities New parents undergo major structural and functional brain changes driven by hormones and the deluge of stimuli a baby provides These neurobiological changes help all parents birthing or otherwise adapt in those intense first days and prepare for a long period of learning how to meet their child's needs Pregnancy produces such significant changes in brain anatomy that researchers can easily sort those who have had one from those who haven't And all highly involved parents no matter their path to parenthood develop similar caregiving circuitry Yet this emerging science which provides key insights into the wide ranging experience of parenthood from its larger role in shaping human nature to the intensity of our individual emotions is mostly absent from the public conversation about parenthood The story that exists in the science today is far more meaningful than the idea that mothers spring into being by instinct Weaving the latest neuroscience and social psychology together with new reporting Conaboy reveals unexpected upsides generations of scientific neglect and a powerful new narrative of parenthood
