Protein Phosphatases and Stress Management in Plants Girdhar K. Pandey,2020-09-26 The regulation of the phosphorylation dephosphorylation process resulting in cellular switches that monitor normal plant physiology growth and development has immense potential in crop systems With much of the information in the nascent stages coming largely from Arabidopsis and rice particularly the use of cell biology genetic screens biochemical approaches aided by an omics approach should help unravel the detail functional information available about signaling pathways in plants The regulation could be exploited to develop crop varieties better equipped to handle changing environments and enhance agricultural productivity In the post genomic era one of the major challenges is investigation and understanding of multiple genes and gene families regulating a particular physiological and developmental aspect of plant life cycle One of the important physiological processes is regulation of stress response which leads to adaptation or adjustment in response to adverse stimuli With the holistic understanding of the signaling pathways involving phosphatases one gene family or multiple genes or gene families plant biologist can lay a foundation for designing and generating future crops which can withstand the higher degree of environmental stresses Especially abiotic stresses which are the major cause of crop loss throughout the world without losing crop yield and productivity This book incorporates the contributions from leading plant biologists in the field of stress mediated dephosphorylation by phosphatases as an important task to elucidate the aspects of stress signaling by functional genomic approaches
