Annual Report 1994 1995:

Pattern in Corporate Evolution Neil M. Kay, 2000 Questions relating to the existence and nature of firms have become major issues in economics in recent years The agenda in this area has been largely set by transaction cost economics Coase Williamson an approach which provides a basis for explaining the boundaries and structure of the firm in a variety of contexts This book follows the agenda set by transaction cost economics but is unique in providing improved explanations of individual phenomena as well as a more general framework for analyzing the nature and behavior of firms He illustrates his argument with sixty figures which present the relations between firms in a graphic form So They Want Us to Learn French Matthew Hayday, 2015-09-15 Since the 1960s bilingualism has become a defining aspect of Canadian identity And yet today relatively few English Canadians speak or choose to speak French Why has personal bilingualism failed to increase as much as attitudes about bilingualism as a Canadian value In So They Want Us to Learn French Matthew Hayday explores the various ways in which bilingualism was promoted to English speaking Canadians from the 1960s to the late 1990s He analyzes the strategies and tactics employed by organizations on both sides of the bilingualism debate Against a dramatic background of constitutional change and controversy economic turmoil demographic shifts and the on again off again possibility of Quebec separatism English speaking Canadians had to decide whether they and their children should learn French Highlighting the personal experiences of proponents and advocates Hayday provides a vivid narrative of a complex controversial and fundamentally Canadian question Yearbook Australia , The History of the University of East Anglia, Norwich Michael Sanderson, 2002-01-01 The University of East Anglia at Norwich was one of a number of new universities founded in Britain in the 1960s in response to the need to increase the provision for higher education Remarkable for its architecture primarily by Denys Lasdun and for its superb Sainsbury Art Collection its history is a telling commentary on the opportunities and problems faced by British universities over the last forty years The History of the University of East Anglia Norwich is a full account of UEA s foundation growth and distinctive character Michael Sanderson highlights both the university s successes and failures at the same time painting a picture of life teaching and research on the campus By examining the real problems faced by a leading British university he has provided an important contribution to British educational history The British Electricity Experiment John Surrey, 2013-11-05 In 1990 energy in the UK underwent a unique and fundamental transformation with the privatization of the electricity supply industry This is the first book to fully assess the experiment It first explains how and why the British electricity supply industry was privatized It then identifies the subsequent changes in electricity prices profits employment investment nuclear power and renewable and the extent to which each of these was due solely to privatization or to other factors or could have come about by reform of the previous model rather than privatization Finally the authors analyse the key unresolved issues of regulation introducing competition into the domestic energy market in 1998 supply security and other long term strategic considerations

Throughout the distinguish between the uniquely British elements of the experience and those which can be drawn upon by other countries embarking upon similar reforms Today governments throughout the world are looking to the UK s experience as a potential prototype for the restructure of their own electricity supply industries For them and for electricity utilities fuel and power plant suppliers regulation authorities financial analysts international agencies journalists and academics alike this thorough and pragmatic study will be essential reading This is likely to become the definitive book on the first six years of the great British electricity experiment Walt Patterson The British Electricity Experiment is the result of a detailed study undertaken by the Energy Programme at the science Policy Research unit SPRU Professor John Surrey was head of SPR s Energy Programme between 1969 and 1986 He has worked with the central Electricity Generating Board as a government Economic Adviser and as a Specialist Adviser to numerous House of Commons Select Committee inquiries on energy matters Originally published in 1996

Recasting the European Order James Sperling, Emil Joseph Kirchner, 1997 The dramatic events since the late 1980s which witnessed the end of the Cold War the dissolution of the Warsaw Pact the fragmentation of the Soviet Union and the emergence of a united Germany have set in motion a recasting of the European security order

Speaking Back Katharine Gelber, 2002-05-03 This book proposes an original policy framework for addressing hate speech Gelber argues that a policy designed to provide support to affected groups and communities to enable them to speak back when hate speech occurs is a more useful way of addressing the harms of hate speech than punitive measures She suggests that speaking back allows the affected groups to contradict the messages contained in the words of the hate speakers and to counteract the silencing disempowering and marginalising effects of hate speech Gelber s argument uniquely synthesises the ideas of defending the importance of participating in speech recognising the harms of hate speech and acknowledging that targeted groups may require assistance to respond

Prisoners' Work and Vocational Training Frances H. Simon, 2005-09 Employing a balance of qualitative and quantitative data including first hand accounts from UK prisons gathered during field research to make Prisoners Work and Vocational Training is an invaluable book in the study of work in prisons
