Stiglitz, 1998 The 1997 World Bank Conference on Development Economics held April 30 May 1 1997 addressed four themes corruption incentives and performance in public organizations the transferability of high growth experience and poverty and the environment The articles discuss the role of government as an institution and the need to reexamine how regulations and incentive structures can improve the effectiveness of government and the productivity of the economy They also look at the experiences of high growth economies to determine how transferable those experiences are to other developing countries Furthermore they emphasize the importance of strengthening institutional structures such as property rights and land tenure and of establishing new markets all of which may positively affect the environment and improve the living conditions of the rural poor Annual World Bank Conference on Development Economics 1998 Boris Pleskovic, Joseph E. Annual Conference on Development Economics, 1998 Economics for an Imperfect World Joseph E. Stiglitz, 2003 The focus of Joseph Stiglitz's work in economics throughout his long and distinguished career has been on the real world with all of its imperfections Development Economics through the Decades Shahid Yusuf, 2008-12-16 This volume not only offers an invaluable retrospective of the World Bank's best thinking on development but also has the analytical caliber and policy insights to become an indispensable source for those dealing with the present and future growth and equity challenges faced by the developing countries Ernesto Zedillo Corruption and Government Susan Rose-Ackerman, 1999-06-28 How high levels of corruption limit investment and growth can lead to ineffective government Foreign Investment and Socio-Economic Development G. Yeung, 2001-04-10 Godfrey Yeung investigates the causes and socio economic effects of foreign direct investment in the Dongguan municipality of southern China during the 1990s As the first comprehensive research based on primary quantitative and qualitative data undertaken in Dongguan it illustrates that the inflow of foreign capital has both desirable and undesirable socio economic effects Yeung proposes a new dynamic symbiosis paradigm of foreign direct investment in order to illuminate the complex political and socio economic relationships of the area

Markets for Water K. William Easter, M.W. Rosegrant, Ariel Dinar, 2007-08-20 Markets for Water Potential and Performance dispels many of the myths surrounding water markets and gives readers a comprehensive picture of the way that markets have developed in different parts of the world It is possible for example for a water market to fail and for the transaction costs in water markets to be excessive Too often water trading is banned because the water resources have been developed with public funds and the water agencies do not want to lose control over water There is also a concern that poor farmers or households will be disadvantaged by water trading These concerns about public resources and the poor are not very different from those that have been voiced in the past about land sales The problem is that in many cases the poor already have limited access to resources but this limit is not due to water trading In fact water trading is likely to expand the access to water for many small scale farmers Markets for Water Potential and Performance provides an analytical framework for water market establishment It develops the necessary conditions for water markets and illustrates how they can improve both water management and economic efficiency Finally the book gives readers an up to date picture of what we have learned about water markets in a wide range of countries from the US to Chile and India
