

Scientific Enquiry

How do scientists solve problems or find answers to questions?
They carry out a scientific enquiry.

Scientists use different enquiry types to answer different questions. They might even use two or more types of enquiry at the same time. For example, a comparative test may also involve observing over time.

The types of scientific enquiry are:

- Observing over Time
- Pattern Seeking
- Identifying, Grouping and Classifying
- Comparative Testing
- Experimenting

Each enquiry type has its own bias. These will be used throughout the PowerPoint.
