Animals Come First:

Animals Matter Marc Bekoff, 2007-11-13 Nonhuman animals have many of the same feelings we do. They get hurt, they suffer, they are happy, and they take care of each other. Marc Bekoff, a renowned biologist specializing in animal minds and emotions, guides readers from high school age up, including older adults who want a basic introduction to the topic, in looking at scientific research, philosophical ideas, and humane values that argue for the ethical and compassionate treatment of animals. Citing the latest scientific studies and tackling controversies with conviction, he zeroes in on the important questions, inviting reader participation with thought experiments and ideas for action. Among the questions considered: Are some species more valuable or more important than others? Do some animals feel pain and suffering, and not others? Do animals feel emotions? Should endangered animals be reintroduced to places where they originally lived? Should animals be kept in captivity? Are there alternatives to using animals for food, clothing, cosmetic testing, and dissection in the science classroom? What can we learn by imagining what it feels like to be a dog or a cat or a mouse or an ant? What can we do to make a difference in animals' quality of life? Bekoff urges us not only to understand and protect animals, especially those whose help we want for our research and other human needs, but to love and respect them as our fellow beings on this planet that we all want to share in peace.

Animals' Defender and Zoophilist, 1911 Impersonating Animals S. Marek Muller, 2020-08-01 In 2011, in one sign of a burgeoning interest in the morality of human interactions with nonhuman animals, a panel hosted by the American Association for the Advancement of Science declared that dolphins and orcas should be legally regarded as persons. Multiple law schools now offer classes in animal law and have animal law clinics placing their students with a growing range of animal rights and animal welfare advocacy organizations. But is legal personhood the best means to achieving total interspecies liberation? To answer that question, Impersonating Animals evaluates the rhetoric of animal rights activists Steven Wise and Gary Francione, as well as the Earth jurisprudence paradigm. Deploying a critical ecofeminist stance sensitive to the interweaving of ideas about race, gender, class, sexuality, ability, and species, author S. Marek Muller places animal rights rhetoric in the context of discourses in which some humans have been deemed more animal than others, and some animals have been deemed more human than others. In bringing rhetoric and animal studies together, she shows that how we communicate about nonhuman beings necessarily affects relationships across species boundaries and among people. This book also highlights how animal studies scholars and activists can and should use ideological rhetorical criticism to investigate the implications of their tactics and strategies, emphasizing a critical vegan rhetoric as the best means of achieving liberation for human and nonhuman animals alike.

The Animals Come First Mary Bowering, 1976 The author tells us what it is like to be married to a vet with a large country practice, a thoroughly enjoyable life even if it is chaotic and unpredictable.

Higgins,2011-12-01 In 1970 at the height of the Cold War the young Sandhurst trained Sultan Qaboos of Oman with secret British military backing took on communist insurgents in a fierce but little known war Along with regular British Army and contract officers the Special Air Service played a key role in this bitterly fought but ultimately successful campaign The value of winning the Hearts and Minds of the local population was quickly recognised and this is where a select band of Royal Army Veterinary Corps officers came in The local economy was a primitive one based on agriculture and the author freshly qualified and by his own admission somewhat naive found himself solely responsible for the veterinary care of a territory the size of Hungary Attached to A Squadron 22 SAS Andrew Higgins learned how to respond to the Jebali peoples love and concern for the animals that provided their livelihood goats camels sheep and most importantly their cattle Then there were the Sultans horses pedigree dogs exotic birds and even bears and hyenas His first hand experiences and anecdotes of life dealing with every level of Omani society from the Ruler and his Court to the humblest refugees and their varied livestock make for wonderfully atmospheric and amusing reading It also provides a thoughtful insight into the value of hearts and minds campaigns in other military operations where the support of the civilian population is crucial to success With the SAS and Other Animals is an unusual and potent mix of Special Forces action and veterinary experiences Readers may well conclude that it really shouldnt have happened to a vet even in a desert war Analyzing Disappearing Habitats Philip

Steele,2018-07-15 Deforestation mining drilling rising sea levels and other threats are contributing to decreasing biodiversity around the world This analytical approach to disappearing habitats and endangered species addresses issues such as climate change population growth and the efficacy of conservation efforts Readers are provided with statistics and perspectives on all sides of the issue allowing them to consider difficult questions such as how to balance the needs of humans with those of other species and the health of the planet as a whole Persons, Animals, Ourselves Paul F. Snowdon,2014-10-09 The starting point for this book is a particular answer to a question that grips many of us what kind of thing are we The particular answer is that we are animals of a certain sort a view nowadays called animalism This answer will appear obvious to many but on the whole philosophers have rejected it Paul F Snowdon proposes contrary to that attitude that there are strong reasons to believe animalism and that when properly analysed the objections against it that philosophers have given are not convincing One way to put the idea is that we should not think of ourselves as things that need psychological states or capacities to exist any more that other animals do The initial chapters analyse the content and general philosophical implications of animalism including the so called problem of personal identity and that of the unity of consciousness and they provide a framework which categorises the standard philosophical objections Snowdon then argues that animalism is consistent with a perfectly plausible account of the central notion of a person and he criticises the accounts offered by John Locke and by David Wiggins of that notion In the two next chapters Snowdon argues that there are very strong reasons to think animalism is true and proposes some central claims about animal which are relevant to the argument In the rest of the book the task is to formulate and to persuade the reader of the lack of cogency of the standard philosophical objections including the conviction that it is possible for the animal that I would be if animalism were true to continue in existence after I have ceased to exist and the argument that it is possible for us to remain in existence even when the animal has ceased to exist In considering these types of objections the views of various philosophers including Nagel Shoemaker Johnston Wilkes and Olson are also explored Snowdon concludes that animalism represents a highly commonsensical and defensible way of thinking about ourselves and that its rejection by philosophers rests on the tendency when doing philosophy to mistake fantasy for reality Animals Friends Society Dr John Davis,2018-05-23 Dr John Davis Has written other books about sport rugby league however in this case he has produced a lighthearted animal book to amuse and inspire good morality in humans
