This journal shows the effects media can have on an individual's viewpoint. Looks at what high exposure to fake news can do to an individual's perception. This journal will help with my research paper as the author shows links between fake news and perceived realism. It also brings up how exposure to hard news helps individuals distinguish between real and fake.

This article tries to define the term fake news and looks at the main uses and ways it is spread. The author also talks about the use of fake websites and the relevance of fake news. I can use this in my research paper as it brings up ways fake media is produced. Also looks at the impacts it can have on the advertising market with fake websites being the main problem.
