Securing Appropriate Education Provision for Children with Autism Spectrum Disorders Allison Hope-West, 2011-05-15

Margaret White, 2018-01-29. This book provides an answer to one of the key questions of our time: namely, what constitutes a good education. Presenting a four-dimensional model, it directly considers the essential elements a good education should include. Through forging this framework and outlaying its origins, implications, and practice, the book explains how a good contemporary education can be defined and implemented. From the premise that such educational essentials are neither the preserve of the elite nor a minimum standard, White's exploration keeps the child at the heart of the discussion, focusing on every pupil's worth, identity, interactions, and development. The author offers a detailed and rigorous perspective, reflecting on extensive professional experience, starting with a consideration of the current educational climate and progressing through the book's three parts: looking for a good education, creating a model of good education, applications, implications, and implementation of the model. A Good Education recognises the transformative power of education and reflects on the importance of human factors: teachers' provision for their pupils and students' ability to flourish. This book is addressed to those actively engaged in or concerned about educational provision: graduates entering teaching, school leaders, policy makers, and parents. It also speaks more broadly to all those who know that a good education really matters. The Comprehensive Guide to Special Education Law
