Archaeological Field Sur Brit:

In the Footsteps of the Etruscans Graeme Barker, Tom Rasmussen, 2023-10-12 In the Footsteps of the Etruscans describes the archaeology of the countryside within a ten km radius of the small town of Tuscania near Rome throwing light on the unrecorded lives of the generations of farmers and shepherds who have lived there What was the character of prehistoric settlement prior to Etruscan urbanization How did urbanization shape the lives of the ordinary Etruscans working the land hardly ever addressed in Etruscan archaeology What was the impact on these people of being absorbed into the expanding Roman empire and its globalised economic structures How did the empire's collapse and the subsequent emergence of the nucleated medieval village affect Tuscania's rural population The project's 7500 year archaeological history from the first farmers to those grappling with globalisation today contributes eloquently to our understanding of how Mediterranean peoples have constantly shaped their landscape and been shaped by it Routledge Revivals: Medieval Archaeology (2001) Pam J. Maschner, Christopher Chippindale, 2005 The Handbook of Archaeological Methods comprises 37 articles by leading archaeologists on the key methods used by archaeologists in the field in analysis in theory building and in managing cultural resources The book is destined to become the key reference work for archaeologists and their advanced students on contemporary archaeological methods The Flag Fen Basin Francis Pryor, 2013-02-15 The Flag Fen Basin has been the subject of nearly continuous archaeological research since about 1900 This research sheds new light on the Neolithic landscape on the Iron Age and Roman landscapes and on the changing environmental conditions since the earlier Neolithic

Hambledon Hill, Dorset, England Roger Mercer, Frances Healy, 2014-02-15 A programme of excavation and survey directed by Roger Mercer between 1974 and 1986 demonstrated that Hambledon was the site of an exceptionally large and diverse complex of earlier Neolithic earthworks including two causewayed enclosures two long barrows and several outworks some of them defensive The abundant cultural material preserved in its ditches and pits provides information about numerous aspects of contemporary society among them conflict feasting the treatment of the human corpse exchange stock management and cereal cultivation The distinct depositional signatures of various parts of the complex reflect their diverse use The scale and manner of individual episodes of construction hint at the levels of organisation and co ordination obtaining in contemporary society Use of the complex and the construction of its various elements were episodic and intermittent spread over 300 400 hundred years and did not entail lasting settlement As well as stone axe heads exchanged from remote sources more abundant grinding equipment and pottery from adjacent regions may point to the areas from which people came to the hill If so it had important links with territories to the west north west and south in other words with land off the Wessex Chalk at the edge of which the complex lies Within the smaller compass of the immediate area of the hill including Cranborne Chase field walking survey suggests that the hill was the main focus of earlier Neolithic activity A complementary relationship with the Chase is indicated by a fairly abrupt diminution of activity on the hill in the late fourth millennium when the massive Dorset cursus and several smaller monuments were built in the Chase Renewed activity on the hill in the late third millennium and early second millennium was a prelude to occupation on and around the hill in the second millennium in the mid to late second millennium which was followed by the construction of a hillfort on the northern spur from the early first millennium Late Iron Age and Romano British activity may reflect the proximity of Hod Hill A small pagan Saxon cemetery may relate to settlement in the Iwerne valley which it overlooks

Urban Archaeology, Municipal Government and Local Planning Sherene Baugher, Douglas R. Appler, William Moss, 2017-07-28 Improving the relationship between archaeology and local government represents one of the next great challenges facing archaeology specifically archaeology done in urban settings Not only does local government have access to powerful legal tools and policy mechanisms that can offer protection for privately owned archaeological sites but because local government exists at the grassroots level it is also often closer to people who have deep knowledge about the community itself about its values and about the local meaning of the sites most in need of protection This partnership between archaeology and local government can also provide visibility and public programing for heritage sites This book will explore the experiences both positive and negative of small and large cities globally We have examined programs in the Commonwealth of Nations formerly known as the British Commonwealth and in the United States These countries share similar perspectives on preservation and heritage although the approaches these cities have taken to address municipal archaeology reveals considerable diversity The case studies highlight how these innovative partnerships have developed and explain how they function within local government Engaging with the political sphere to advocate for and conduct archaeology requires creativity flexibility and the ability to develop collaborative partnerships How these archaeological partnerships benefit the community is a vital part of the equation Heritage and tourist benefits are discussed Economic challenges during downturns in the economy are analyzed The book also examines public outreach programs and the grassroots efforts to protect and preserve a community's archaeological heritage
