Approaches To History:

Debating New Approaches to History Marek Tamm, Peter Burke, 2018-10-04 With its innovative format Debating New Approaches to History addresses issues currently at the top of the discipline's theoretical and methodological agenda. In its chapters leading historians of both older and younger generations from across the Western world and beyond discuss and debate the main problems and challenges that historians are facing today. Each chapter is followed by a critical commentary from another key scholar in the field and the author's response. The volume looks at topics such as the importance and consequences of the digital turn in history; what will history writing be like in a digital age; the challenge of posthumanist theory for history writing; how do we write the history of non-humans and the possibilities of moving beyond traditional sources in history; and establishing a dialogue with genetics and neurosciences: what are the perspectives and limits of the so-called neurohistory? It also revisits older debates in history which remain crucial such as what the gender approach can offer to historical research or how to write history on a global scale. Debating New Approaches to History does not just provide a useful overview of the new approaches to history it covers but also offers insights into current historical debates and the process of historical method in the making. It demonstrates how the discipline of history has responded to challenges in society such as digitalization, globalization and environmental concerns as well as in humanities and social sciences such as the material turn, visual turn or affective turn. This is a key volume for all students of historiography wanting to keep their finger on the pulse of contemporary thinking in historical research.

Approaches to History H. P. R. Finberg, 2016-04-14 The contributors to this volume originally published in 1962 explain the raison d'être of their own specialism in history, be it archaeology, political, local, economic or social history or historical geography.

Approaches to History Sabyasachi Bhattacharya, 2011 History as a social science is arguably more self-reflective than associated disciplines in that family. Other social scientists seem to see little reason to look beyond the paradigm they are developing in the present times. Historians on the other hand tend to depend on the cumulative process of the development of their craft and the fund of accumulated knowledge. Yet while this is acknowledged in the practice of research, historiography in itself as a subject of study has rarely found its place in the syllabi of Indian universities. Knowledge of historiography is taken for granted when a scholar plunges into research. In an attempt to address this lacuna, the Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR) has planned a series of volumes on historiography comprising articles by subject specialists commissioned by the ICHR. The first volume in the series Approaches to History: Essays in Indian Historiography brings to the readers the first fruits of that endeavour. While the essays encompass areas of research presently at the frontiers of new research, scholars will also find the bibliographies accompanying the essays of significant appeal.

Elie Kedourie's Approaches to History and Political Theory Sylvia Kedourie, 2013-10-18 Elie Kedourie was one of the twentieth century's most important and controversial historians of the Middle East. He redefined the landscape of the field by challenging the notion that the West's imperial domination of the region spawned nationalism in Arab countries In a long career lecturing in politics at the London School of Economics Kedourie inspired a generation of political scientists and politicians A dedicated scholar and meticulous teacher he founded Middle Eastern Studies a journal which forty years after its launch remains one of the leading publications in the field and a monument to his work Bringing together some of the most distinguished figures in Middle Eastern studies this collection evaluates Kedourie's contribution to Middle Eastern history and political thought and assesses the impact of his scholarly legacy The volume contains a complete bibliography of his writing and was previously published as a special issue of Middle Eastern Studies Approaches to History H. P. R. the Second World War inaugurated a new era of historical studies History as a discipline exploded in numerous new directions as young historians questioned inherited concepts and approaches that no longer seemed relevant Geoffrey Barraclough in this thoughtful overview of the present state of the historian's craft summarizes the development and access the ferment that has characterized historical studies in the last three decades There has been first of all a search for new concepts and methodologies that transcend national boundaries and ideologies Borrowing ideas from the disciplines of sociology anthropology psychology and economics historians have found vital intercultural links heretofore unseen while embracing the need for a more scientific approach to the past The development of new historical techniques derived from the social sciences has also increased the possibilities of understanding the past but has also increased the complexities of historical knowledge We have arrived as Barraclough observes at the age of team work where major projects are of such scope that many minds are needed to carry them out The present vitality of Historical investigation has also immensely broadened our definition of history Publisher
