Birth, Death, and Religious Faith in an English Dissenting Community Albion M. Urdank, 2015-12-17 This study lies at the intersection of three principal areas of social history demography religion and quantitative methods It is a microanalysis of an English population at the level of the Anglican parish during the era of the evangelical revival which includes unusually Protestant dissenters from the Established church in this case Particular Baptists who were moderate Calvinists It goes a step beyond previous studies by giving Anglicans and Dissenters co equal status in a comparative demographic analysis and by demonstrating how religious values informed procreative activity It does so through a combination of advanced statistical methodologies and an innovative treatment of data collection forms as readable texts The study concludes that the likelihood of another birth increased following a religious conversion experience especially among both Anglican and Baptist wives following marriage Mortality too had a less constraining effect on procreative activity which in conformity with the English experience was driven largely by fertility
