Black Aged Understanding Diversity And Service Needs:

Black Aged Zev Harel, Edward A. McKinney, Michael Williams, 1990 How do various ethnic communities compare on levels of health income and quality of housing for their elderly This volume demonstrates that the Black community is among the poorest on all three levels especially when compared to their white counterparts The book offers conceptual perspectives on both the uniqueness of Black elderly as a group and at the same time provides analytical approaches for understanding their diversity In twelve incisive essays the state of America's Black aged is assessed and policies and programmes analyzed The authors point to the importance of gearing services to a diverse group of elderly people and highlight the severe demand for such community services curtailed by the very real discrimination

Black Aged Zev Harel, Edward McKinney, Michael Williams, 1990-07 Increasingly we understand that no ethnic community is monolithic but shows a great degree of diversity in demographics class and socio economic status This volume demonstrates this in its focus on the black ageing community showing how these diversities have enormous implications for social services social programmes and social policy In these twelve informative incisive essays the state of America's black aged is assessed and policies and programmes analyzed The authors point to the importance of gearing services to a diverse group of elderly people They also highlight how traditional racism and economic limitations impact on service needs and uses Finally they note the importance of family church and other informal support networks in the black community as a substitute for or supplement to more formally delivered services Written by some of the best known scholars and professionals in the field of gerontology the essays in this book will be required reading for all those delivering services to minority aged clients

Handbook on Ethnicity, Aging, and Mental Health Deborah Padgett, 1995-01-30 This state of the art multi disciplinary reference is the first to assess the empirical research and conceptual frameworks for understanding the mental health needs and services use of the ethnic elderly Leading scholars researchers and clinicians in gerontology epidemiology psychiatry psychology sociology anthropology nursing and social work appraise varying approaches the demographics the mental health status and service use of the ethnic elderly and issues in the diagnosis treatment and mental health service delivery for the ethnic aged for African Americans American Indians Asian and Pacific Islander Americans and Hispanic Latino Americans This unique handbook is a valuable resource and text for students teachers and professionals in a broad array of fields and settings The handbook considers such problems as Alzheimer's Disease depression and problems of coping culturally specific psychosocial nursing care programs the role of culture and class in mental and physical co morbidity among the elderly and important life course perspectives for specific groups Students teachers and professionals in many fields and settings will find this unique handbook a valuable resource and text

Handbook of Social Work Practice with Vulnerable and Resilient Populations Alex Gitterman, 2001 Role in forming balanced assessments

Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging Barbara Berkman, 2006-02-09 The Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging is the first reference to combine the fields of health care aging and social work in a single authoritative volume These areas are too often treated as discrete entities while the reality is that all social workers deal with issues in health and aging on a daily basis regardless of practice specialization As the baby boomers age the impact on practice in health and aging will be dramatic and social workers need more specialized knowledge about aging health care and the resources available to best serve older adults and their families The volume s 102 original chapters and 13 overviews written by the most experienced and prominent gerontological health care scholars in the United States and across the world provide social work practitioners and educators with up to date knowledge of evidence based practice guidelines for effectively assessing and treating older adults and their families new models for intervention in both community based practice and institutional care and knowledge of significant policy and research issues in health and aging A truly monumental resource this handbook represents the best research on health and aging available to social workers today

The Gerontological Prism: Developing Interdisciplinary Bridges Jeffrey Michael Clair, Richard Allman, 2018-10-26 The Gerontological Prism promotes disciplinary cooperation in aging research and practice To some extent each chapter explores a unified objective that of generating a disciplinary blind gerontology The fundamental assumption throughout this book is that the aging individual and society can be enhanced by an understanding of the correlates of basic social behavioral demographic economic political ethical and biomedical processes involving aging Each author touches on issues that have both social psychological and practical policy significance They aim toward sensitizing the reader to the possibilities of a properly informed interdisciplinary approach to gerontology

Social Work Practice with Ethnically and Racially Diverse Nursing Home Residents and Their Families Patricia Kolb, 2007-07-06 The first of its kind this volume is a critical companion for service providers who work with African American American Indian Chinese Italian Japanese Korean Mexican American and Puerto Rican elders and their families in nursing homes and other care settings These groups are likely to use nursing homes in larger numbers as cultural shifts such as higher divorce rates and increased outside of home employment for females transform traditional family dynamics Contributors are experience social workers and most belong to the specific ethnic or racial group that is the focus of their chapter and have also provided nursing home services to this group They provide a wealth of demographic historical cultural and practice information crucial to understanding and providing services to older adults and their families Many nursing home residents experience physical and or cognitive debilitation and increased dependence as older adults and cultural and situational differences create variations in how these changes are experienced and addressed In this volume contributors touch upon all of these areas as well as ways in which prejudice and discrimination have shaped intergenerational and other relationships for members of specific ethnic and racial groups Little has been written about the characteristics needs and experiences of racially and ethnically diverse nursing home residents and their families and requirements for culturally competent social work practice Written by social workers for social workers and other service providers this book fills a gap in a rapidly growing area of gerontological service and provides a truly comprehensive examination of cultural and practice phenomena
