

 Bloodborne pathogens are infectious microorganisms present in the blood that can cause disease in humans.

WHAT CAN BE DONE TO CONTROL EXPOSURE TO BLOODBORNE PATHOGENS?

The plan must also describe how the employer will use different protective measures and other provisions as required by OSHA's Bloodborne Pathogens Standard.

*other potentially infectious materials

In general, the standard requires employers to:

Implement the use of universal precautions (treating all human blood and OPIM)

Identify and ensure the use of work practice controls for reducing the possibility of exposure by changing the way a task is performed

Maintain worker's medical and training records.

- Employers must update the plan annually to reflect all the changes

Make available post-exposure evaluation and follow-up to any occupationally exposed worker who experiences an exposure incident
