Against Mediocrity The Humanities In Americas High Schools:

Against Mediocrity Vanderbilt Institute for Public Policy Studies, 1984 Against Mediocrity starts from and argues vigorously for the belief that the education of every American child must be founded on the humanistic disciplines In sixteen essays leading scholars educators and school policymakers eloquently assess the current condition of the humanities in the secondary schools analyze how this state of affairs developed and what the humanities ought to be accomplishing not only for individual students but for society as a whole

National History Standards Linda Symcox, Arie Wilschut, 2009-04-01 As educators in the United States and Europe develop national history standards for K 12 students the question of what to do with national history canons is a subject of growing concern Should national canons still be the foundation for the teaching of history Do national canons develop citizenship or should they be modified to accommodate the new realities of globalization Or should they even be discarded outright These questions become blurred by the debates over preserving national heritages by so called history wars or culture wars and by debates over which pedagogical frameworks to use These canon and pedagogical debates often overlap creating even more confusion A misconceived skills vs content debate often results Teaching students to think chronologically and historically is not the same as teaching a national heritage or a cosmopolitan outlook But what exactly is the difference Policy makers and opinion leaders often confuse the pedagogical desirability of using a framework for studying history with their own efforts to reaffirm the centrality of national identity rooted in a vision of their nation s history as a way of inculcating citizenship and patriotism These are the issues discussed in this volume Today s students are citizens of the world and must be taught to think in global supranational terms At the same time the traditionalists have a point when they argue that the ideal of the nation state is the cultural glue that has traditionally held society together and that social cohesion depends on creating and inculcating a common national culture in the schools From an educational perspective the problem is how to teach chronological thinking at all How are we to reconcile the social political and intellectual realities of a globalizing world with the continuing need for individuals to function locally as citizens of a nation state who share a common past a common culture and a common political destiny Is it a duty of history education to create a frame of reference and if so what kind of frame of reference should this be How does frame of reference knowledge relate to canonical knowledge and the body of knowledge of history as a whole

Whose History? Linda Symcox, 2002 In the 1990s the debate over what history and more importantly whose history should be taught in American schools resonated through the halls of Congress the national press and the nation s schools Politicians such as Lynne Cheney Newt Gingrich and Senator Slade Gorton and pundits such as Rush Limbaugh John Leo and Charles Krauthammer fiercely denounced the findings of the National Standards for History which subsequently became a major battleground in the nation s ongoing struggle to define its historical identity To help us understand what happened Linda Symcox traces the genealogy of the National History Standards Project from its origins as a neo conservative reform movement to the drafting of the Standards through the 18 months of controversy and the debate that ensued and the aftermath Broad in scope this case study includes debates on social history world history multiculturalism established canons national identity cultural history and liberal education Symcox brilliantly illuminates the larger issue of how educational policy is made and contested in the United States revealing how a debate about our children s education actually became a struggle between competing political forces At-Risk Students Robert Donmoyer, Raylene Kos, 1993-07-01 This book explores the circumstances of at risk students and argues that well intentioned policymakers and educators run the risk of making matters worse rather than better for these students even if their actions are based on the best social science evidence available The book demonstrates the diverse idiosyncratic nature of these students argues that traditional social science methods cannot capture this idiosyncrasy and diversity and presents research methods policies and programs that can accommodate student diversity

What Do Our 17-Year-Olds Know Diane Ravitch, 2010-11-02 What Do Our 17 Year Olds Know Gives the results of the first nationwide test of American high school students knowledge of history and literature as well as fascinating insight into what teenagers are reading how much television they watch what influence their home environment has on their academic achievement and what historical topics and literary works are included in or have been dropped from the school curriculum

Reforming Schools Jesse Goodman, 2012-02-01 In Reforming Schools Jesse Goodman discusses the possibilities struggles and complexities involved in reforming today s schools Drawing from his own experiences at the Harmony Education Center a progressive educational center he helped establish in 1990 Goodman offers a vision of how to persevere at a time when many progressive educators are feeling discouraged He focuses on practical ideas for reform such as establishing school autonomy creating democratic structures rituals and values upon which school reform discourse can be generated and by addressing the current conservative agenda how to influence what happens in our nation s public schools By situating school reform within a progressive history of Western society the author offers valuable insights and ideas that are alternatives to both the conservative and the radical left analyses of schools and society

Social Justice, Peace, and Environmental Education

Julie Andrzejewski, Marta Baltodano, Linda Symcox, 2009-04-01 The concept of standards seems antithetical to the ways critical educators are dedicated to teaching but what would standards look like if they were generated from social justice perspectives and through collaborative and inclusive processes Such is the central question posed by the contributors of this groundbreaking collection on the interconnectivity of social justice peace and environmental preservation Challenging education that promotes consumerism careerism and corporate profiteering they boldly offer examples of a new paradigm for practicing a transformative critical pedagogy Rather than just talking about coalition building within and across educational communities they demonstrate how we might communicate from different vantage points and disciplinary boundaries to create a broader picture of social and eco justice Social Justice Peace and Environmental Education will be required reading for educators and students who want to envision and practice living acting and teaching for a better world Winston Churchill Was a Catholic Priest Richard Doyle, 2008-11 Jewels Of Morocco is the name of a tour of The Kingdom of Morocco in North Africa The seven stories in this book take you everywhere from Casablanca where the Hassan II mosque stands to places up and down busy streets shopping in exquisite shops and native markets to see guards at the doors of grand palaces kings and queens an ancient city Berbers in their flowing robes veiled women cedar forests and volcanic mountains red colored mud brick and straw villages that turn into cities clusters of palm trees in valleys climb to the top of snow capped mountains and back down to the bottom of canyons meet nomads ride a camel into the Sahara desert to see the sunset and ride a horse driven carriage through the magical city of Marrakesh at the end of the tour
