Bringing the Light Into a New Day: African-centered Rites of Passage Lathardus Goggins II,2012-05-25 Bringing The Light Into A New Day provides a scaffolding to understand the purpose function structure process and transformative power of the rites of passage process Light is a metaphor for opportunity hope and wisdom Our light is our heritage a dynamic interaction of the past and future to create new solutions for our present If we do not bring this light into the new day then we doom ourselves to be cast in the faint light of others interpretations of our capabilities African American families and communities must bring the light into the new day so our children can see their unique genius How to bring this light African centered Rites of Passage African-Centered Education Kmt G. Shockley,Kofi Lomotey,2020-07-31 This volume brings together leading scholars and practitioners to address the theory and practice of African centered education The contributors provide 1 perspectives on the history methods successes and challenges of African centered education 2 discussions of the efforts that are being made to counter the miseducation of Black children and 3 prescriptions for and analyses of the way forward for Black children and Black communities The authors argue that Black children need an education that moves them toward leading and taking agency within their own communities They address several areas that capture the essence of what African centered education is how it works and why it is a critical imperative at this moment Those areas include historical analyses of African centered education parental perspectives strategies for working with Black children African centered culture science and STEM culturally responsive curriculum and instruction and culturally responsive resources for teachers and school leaders

Racial Situations John Hartigan Jr., 2020-10-06 Racial Situations challenges perspectives on race that rely upon oft repeated claims that race is culturally constructed and hence simply false and distorting John Hartigan asserts instead that we need to explain how race is experienced by people as a daily reality His starting point is the lives of white people in Detroit As a distinct minority whites in this city can rarely assume they are racially unmarked and normative privileges generally associated with whiteness Hartigan conveys their attempts to make sense of how race matters in their lives and in Detroit generally Rather than compiling a generic sampling of white views Hartigan develops an ethnographic account of whites in three distinct neighborhoods an inner city underclass area an adjacent debatably gentrifying community and a working class neighborhood bordering one of the city's wealthy suburbs In tracking how racial tensions develop or become defused in each of these sites Hartigan argues that whites do not articulate their racial identity strictly in relation to a symbolic figure of black Otherness He demonstrates instead that intraracial class distinctions are critical in whites' determinations of when and how race matters In each community the author charts a series of names hillbilly gentrifier and racist which whites use to make distinctions among themselves He shows how these terms function in everyday discourses that reflect the racial consciousness of the communities and establish boundaries of status and privilege among whites in these areas

Exploring the African Centered Paradigm Itibari M. Zulu, 1999 An African-centered Model of Prevention for African-American Youth at High Risk Lawford L. Goddard, 1993 Bringing the Light Into a New Day Lathardus Goggins II, 2023-08-23 In the remarkable book Bringing the Light into a New Day the author delves into the profound principles and intricate components of African centered rites of passage However it is important to note that this is not a mere how to manual rather it serves as a guiding force to help

readers understand the essence of how to how to By exploring the concept of family based community linked African centered rites of passage this book offers invaluable insights into a transformative journey The title itself Bringing the Light into a New Day carries a metaphorical weight drawing from the wisdom found in quotes and expressions about light and the break of dawn Light in this context symbolizes opportunity hope and wisdom The author Goggins asserts that we must actively engage in the creation and nurturing of this light if we are to reap its benefits To bring the light is to embody the concept of sankofa which urges us to reflect on and study the past present and future drawing from what has proven effective Sankofa challenges us to apply the wisdom of the past in the present thereby shaping the desired future Our light is our heritage Failing to bring this light into the new day would condemn us to either perish in the darkness of the night or exist under the dim glow of other people s interpretations rendering us unable to recognize our own boundless potential These words echo the wisdom of Marcus Garvey who reminds us that mere chance cannot satisfy the aspirations of a suffering people Instead it is through action self reliance and envisioning both the self and the future that the oppressed discover and realize the light of their own liberation In the context of African American families and communities it becomes paramount to bring the light encompassing opportunity hope and wisdom into the new day By doing so the children can embrace and nurture their unique genius And how can this be accomplished The answer lies in African centered Rites of Passage which serve as a transformative vehicle to guide individuals towards self discovery empowerment and an authentic understanding of their cultural heritage Bringing the Light into a New Day illuminates the path towards reclaiming our narrative cherishing our heritage and igniting the potential within ourselves and our communities It is an extraordinary invitation to embark on a journey of self realization guided by the principles of African centered rites of passage where the light of opportunity hope and wisdom shines brightest
