Fostering Technology Absorption in Southern African Enterprises

The World Bank, 2011-09-16 While economic theory considers technological progress to be a key factor for sustained long term economic growth and job creation technology absorption is particularly an important driver for catch up growth This study seeks to identify channels of technology transfer and absorption for Southern African enterprises constraints to greater technology absorption and discuss policy options open to governments and the private sector in light of relevant international experience It has been done based on sector and enterprise case studies carried in four countries South Africa Mauritius Lesotho and Namibia This study uses a combination of econometric and in depth case study analyses to investigate the presence of specific channels of absorption and the various constraints that the firms face to effectively absorb this technology There is evidence of learning by exporting and spillovers from FDI underscoring the importance of trade and FDI as important channels of absorption The study finds that four countries while open to trade and FDI face a number of constraints that inhibit them from maximizing the economic benefits from technology absorption These constraints include a major skills mismatch insufficient research and development and ineffective industry research linkages While outlining broad policy directions in four areas namely increasing skills supply fostering learning through trade increasing domestic spillovers from FDI and incentivizing greater firm level research and development it lays out some priority areas for each of the four countries We hope that the issues discussed and the dialogue initiated during the course of this study would lend itself to policy design to foster technology absorption with a view to higher growth and job creation in this highly globalized world

China's African Challenges Sarah Raine, 2013-10-18 China's relations with African nations have changed dramatically over the past decade African oil now accounts for more than 30% of China's oil imports and China is Africa's second largest single country trading partner as well as a leading lender and infrastructure investor on the continent Yet these developments are bringing challenges not only for Africa and the West but for China as well This book examines these challenges considering Africa as a testing ground both for Chinese companies going global and for a Chinese government that is increasingly having to deal with issues beyond its shores and immediate control What does China need to do to protect and develop its African engagements against a backdrop of mounting African expectations concerns from Western actors in Africa and the rival presence of other emerging actors How sustainable is the momentum that China has established in its African ventures China's adaptations to the challenges it is facing in Africa are examined and assessed as are the implications of these changes for China Africa and the West China's African engagements are certainly changing Africa but could they also be changing China South African Mining & Engineering Journal, 1912 The South African Mining and Engineering Journal, 1919 Commercial Intelligence Journal Canada. Department of Trade and Commerce, 1919

Elephants, Economics and Ivory Edward B. Barbier, Joanne C. Burgess, Timothy M. Swanson, David W. Pearce, 2013-11-05 Ivory is big business and in some parts of Africa elephants have been hunted almost to extinction in the quest for it The losses to African economies have been catastrophic Now there is an international ban on the trade and conservation is the principal goal This should be a matter for rejoicing but nothing is quite so simple The authors of this book have looked at the overall statistics including those for countries where the elephant population is stable They have considered the multiplicity of economic and social functions fulfilled by ensuring that elephant herds survive tourism a variety of ecological purpose and finally as a source of ivory They show how the careful management of elephants as a resource can best serve African interests This book is at the cutting edge of economic thinking and provides a model for the consideration of the difficult relationship between people and wildlife Originally published in 1999 The Oxford

Handbook of the South African Economy Arkebe Oqubay, Fiona Tregenna, Imraan Valodia, 2021-11-18 While sharing some characteristics with other middle income countries South Africa is a country with a unique economic history and distinctive economic features It is a regional economic powerhouse that plays a significant role not only in southern Africa and in the continent but also as a member of BRICS However there has been a lack of structural transformation and weak economic growth and South Africa faces the profound triple challenges of poverty inequality and unemployment Any meaningful debate about economic policies to address these challenges needs to be informed by a deep understanding of historical developments robust empirical evidence and rigorous analysis of South Africa's complex economic landscape This volume seeks to provide a wide ranging set of original detailed and state of the art analytical perspectives that contribute to scientific knowledge as well as to well informed and productive discourse on the South African economy While concentrating on the more recent economic issues facing South Africa the handbook also provides historical and political context It offers an in depth examination of strategic issues in the country s key economic sectors and brings together diverse analytical perspectives The Origins and Demise of South African Apartheid Anton David Lowenberg, William H. Kaempfer, 1998 What motivated South Africa s former white leaders to hand over the reins of power to a black government Economist Anton D Lowenberg examines the economic interests that led to apartheid and the economic prospects for post apartheid South African society Survey of Economic Conditions in Africa United Nations. Economic Commission for Africa, 1968
