McLoughlin, 1970 Social factors and food production in an East African peasant society The food production system of a semi nomadic society the karimojong Uganda Zande production by the Yalunka Household Sierra Leone Agriculture and Diola Society The introduction of the ox plow in central Gambia The food economy of ba dugu djoliba Understanding Africa's Rural Households And Farming Systems Joyce Lewinger Moock, 2019-06-26 In this book the difficult problems of agriculture in sub Saharan Africa are examined by the farming systems approach which aims to improve food production under adverse conditions through agronomic and social science research conducted on the farm Particular attention is paid to household decision making processes that affect the way households Desertification Michael H. Glantz, 2019-03-04 The United Nations Water Conference in Argentina in March 1977 and the United Nations Conference to Combat Desertification in Kenya in August 1977 reflect the worldwide attention that recent global food shortages and growing populations have drawn to the destruction of arable and potentially arable land This collection of articles focuses on a primary form of such destruction desertification the creation of desert like conditions in arid or semiarid regions either by changes in climate patterns or by human mismanagement or both The contributors representing a range of disciplines examine and evaluate the social political economic environmental and technical problems related to the causes and effects of desertification The Development Process Akin Mabogunje, 2015-12-14 Written from the perspective of developing countries this book discusses the development process from a spatial perspective focussing particularly on the evolution of the intra national space economy With emphasis on African nations this book offers a distinctive interpretation of the current situation and policy prescriptions differing significantly from previous literature in the area Farming Systems In The Nigerian Savanna David Norman, 2019-03-04 This book embodies work stretching over a fifteen year period As a result inevitably we are greatly indebted to a number of institutions and a large number of individuals Over the years considerable administrative and financial help was provided by the Institute for Agricultural Research Ahmadu Bello University the Ministries of Agriculture and Natural Resources in the northern states of Nigeria the Ford Foundation and more recently Kansas State University

Catalog of Copyright Entries. Third Series Library of Congress. Copyright Office, 1973 Migrants, Credit and Climate Kenneth Swindell, Alieu Jeng, 2021-11-29 After the ending of the Atlantic slave trade West Africa experienced a period of transition to legitimate trade which provided agricultural staples for the burgeoning European market One early example was the groundnut trade which developed along the River Gambia where myriad households grew the crop which was purchased and transported by the merchant interest Of crucial importance were pioneer migrant farmers whose numbers were later swelled by other labour migrants drawn from a wide area The trade pre dated colonial partition and producers were integrated into the international market by extended chains of merchant credit and indebtedness By the latter part of the 19th century the vagaries of the world market were becoming apparent as well as the climate which together affected output and incomes Colonial rule created conditions for the expansion of the trade but food supply in the face of groundnut specialization became a fundamental issue and led to experiments with irrigation and mixed farming In the 20th century the trade was marked by drought the First World War credit crises de monetization and trade depression while throughout it remained a migrant driven economy The book provides an account of the Gambian groundnut trade and the associated environmental social and economic conditions as well as commenting on liberal and radical analyses on the shift from the Atlantic slave trade through legitimate trade to colonial rule Shrines of the Slave Trade Robert M.

Baum,1999-05-13 In this groundbreaking work Robert Baum seeks to reconstruct the religious and social history of the Diola communities in southern Senegal during the precolonial era when the Atlantic slave trade was at its height Baum shows that Diola community leaders used a complex of religious shrines and priesthoods to regulate and contain the influence of the slave trade He demonstrates how this close involvement with the traders significantly changed Diola religious life
