After Nature English Kinship In The Late Twentieth Century:

After Nature Marilyn Strathern, 1992-03-12 After Nature is a timely account of fundamental constructs in English kinship at a moment when advances in reproductive technologies are raising questions about the natural basis of kinship relations

After Nature Marilyn Strathern, 1992 After Nature Marilyn Strathern, 1992-03-12 Central as kinship has been to the development of British social anthropology this is the first attempt by an anthropologist to situate ideas about English kinship in a cultural context Marilyn Strathern challenges the traditional separation of Western kinship studies from the study of the wider society If contemporary society appears diverse changing and fragmented these same features also apply to people's ideas about kinship She views ideas of relatedness nature and the biological constitution of persons in their cultural context and offers new insights into the late twentieth century values of individualism and consumerism After Nature is a timely reflection at a moment when advances in reproductive technology raise questions about the natural basis of kinship relations

Genetic Nature/Culture Prof. Alan H. Goodman, Prof. Deborah Heath, M. Susan Lindee, 2003-11-06 The so called science wars pit science against culture and nowhere is the struggle more contentious or more fraught with paradox than in the burgeoning realm of genetics A constructive response and a welcome intervention this volume brings together biological and cultural anthropologists to conduct an interdisciplinary dialogue that provokes and instructs even as it bridges the science culture divide Individual essays address issues raised by the science politics and history of race evolution and identity genetically modified organisms and genetic diseases gene work and ethics and the boundary between humans and animals The result is an entree to the complicated nexus of questions prompted by the power and importance of genetics and genetic thinking and the dynamic connections linking culture biology nature and technoscience The volume offers critical perspectives on science and culture with contributions that span disciplinary divisions and arguments grounded in both biological perspectives and cultural analysis An invaluable resource and a provocative introduction to new research and thinking on the uses and study of genetics Genetic Nature Culture is a model of fruitful dialogue presenting the quandaries faced by scholars on both sides of the two cultures debate Nature and Society Philippe Descola, Gisli Palsson, 2003-12-16 The contributors to this book focus on the relationship between nature and society from a variety of theoretical and ethnographic perspectives Their work draws upon recent developments in social theory biology ethnobiology epistemology sociology of science and a wide array of ethnographic case studies from Amazonia the Solomon Islands Malaysia the Mollucan Islands rural communities from Japan and north west Europe urban Greece and laboratories of molecular biology and high energy physics The discussion is divided into three parts emphasising the problems posed by the nature culture dualism some misguided attempts to respond to these problems and potential avenues out of the current dilemmas of ecological discourse Feeding Anorexia Helen Gremillion, 2003-08-22 A groundbreaking study of anorexia treatment that shows how the treatment often makes the disease worse Romancing the Sperm Diane Tober, 2019 In this book Tober explores the intersections between sperm donation and the broader social and political environment in which modern families are created and regulated The book provides information on family and kinship genetics and eugenics and how ever expanding assisted reproductive technologies continue to redefine what it means to be human Before and After Gender: Sexual Mythologies of Everyday Life Marilyn Strathern, 2016-01-01 Written in the early 1970s amidst widespread debate over the causes of gender inequality Marilyn Strathern's Before and After Gender was intended as a widely accessible analysis of gender as a powerful cultural code and sex as a defining mythology But when the series for which it was written unexpectedly folded the manuscript went into storage where it remained for more than four decades This book finally brings it to light giving the long lost feminist work accompanied here by an afterword from Judith Butler an overdue spot in feminist history Strathern incisively engages some of the leading feminist thinkers of the time including Shulamith Firestone Simone de Beauvoir Ann Oakley and Kate Millett Building with characteristic precision toward a bold conclusion in which she argues that we underestimate the materializing grammars of sex and gender at our own peril she offers a powerful challenge to the intransigent mythologies of sex that still plague contemporary society The result is a sweeping display of Strathern's vivid critical thought and an important contribution to feminist studies that has gone unpublished for far too long Race, Nature and Culture Peter Wade, 2002-06-20 Since the controversial scientific race theories of the 1930s anthropologists have generally avoided directly addressing the issue of race viewing it as a social construct Challenging this tradition Peter Wade proposes that anthropologists can in fact play an important role in the study of race Wade is critical of contemporary theoretical studies of race formulated within the contexts of colonial history sociology and cultural studies Instead he argues for a new direction one which anthropology is well placed to explore Taking the study of race beyond Western notions of the individual Wade argues for new paradigms in social science in particular in the development of connections between race sex and gender An understanding of these issues within an anthropological context he contends is vital for defining personhood and identity Race is often defined by its reference to biology blood genes nature or essence Yet these concepts are often left unexamined Integrating material from the history of science science studies and anthropological studies of kinship and new reproductive technologies as well as from studies of race Peter Wade explores the meaning of such terms and interrogates the relationship between nature and culture in ideas about race Making a Good Life Katharine Dow, 2016-06-21 Making a Good Life takes a timely look at the ideas and values that inform how people think about reproduction and assisted reproductive technologies In an era of heightened scrutiny about parenting and reproduction fears about environmental degradation and the rise of the biotechnology industry Katharine Dow delves into the reproductive ethics of those who do not have a personal stake in assisted reproductive technologies but who are building lives inspired and influenced by environmentalism and concerns about the natural world's future Moving away from experiences of infertility treatments tied to the clinic and laboratory Dow instead explores reproduction and assisted reproductive technologies as topics of public concern and debate and she examines how people living in a coastal village in rural Scotland make ethical decisions and judgments about these matters In particular Dow engages with people s ideas about nature and naturalness and how these relate to views about parenting and building stable environments for future generations Taking into account the ways daily responsibilities and commitments are balanced with moral values Dow suggests there is still much to uncover about reproductive ethics Analyzing how ideas about reproduction intersect with wider ethical struggles Making a Good Life offers a new approach to researching thinking and writing about nature ethics and reproduction
