Child Development in Africa: Views From Inside Serpell, Kofi Marfo, 2014-12-19 In this volume African scholars engaged in research on the continent reflect on their recent and ongoing empirical studies. They discuss the strengths and limitations of research methods, theories, and interventions designed outside Africa to spur innovative research on the continent. And they explore how insights from African philosophical, theoretical, and empirical work can be combined with exogenous forms of knowledge to generate understanding of the processes of African children's development in ways that are responsive to local contexts and meaningful for indigenous stakeholders. A new field of African child development research is emerging in African societies focusing on children as valued and vulnerable members of society and potential civic leaders of the future. Systematic inquiries are now designed to enhance our understanding of how African children think to discover effective ways of communicating with them and to inform successful strategies of promoting their health, education, and preparation for adult responsibilities in society. This is the 146th volume in this Jossey-Bass series New Directions for Child and Adolescent Development. Its mission is to provide scientific and scholarly presentations on cutting-edge issues and concepts in this subject area. Each volume focuses on a specific new direction or research topic and is edited by experts from that field.

Child Development Laura Berk, 2015-05-20
Child Perspectives and Children's Perspectives in Theory and Practice Dion Sommer, Ingrid Pramling Samuelsson, Karsten Hundeide, 2009-12-24
Recent decades have seen a growing emphasis in a number of professional contexts on acknowledging and acting on the views of children. This trend was given added weight by the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child ratified in 1990. Today seeking the perspective of the child has become an essential process in all sorts of tasks from framing new legislation to regulating professions. This book answers the fundamental question of what it is that constitutes a child perspective and how this might differ from the perspectives of children themselves. The answers to such questions have important implications for building progressive and developmental adult-child relationships. However, theoretical and empirical treatments of child perspectives and children's perspectives are very diverse and idiosyncratic, and the standard reference work has yet to be written. Thus this work is an attempt to fill the gap in the literature by searching for and defining key formulations of potential child perspectives within parts of the so-called new child paradigm. This has been derived from childhood sociology, contextual, relational, developmental psychology, interpretative, humanistic psychology, and developmental pedagogy. The highly experienced authors develop a comprehensive professional child perspective paradigm that integrates recent theory and empirical child research. With its clear presentation of underlying theories and suggested applications, this book illustrates a child-oriented understanding of specific relevance to both child care and preschool educational practice.
