

GRAMMATICAL AGREEMENT ERRORS ON STUDENTS' COMPOSITION

Nissa Rizki Gusti

University of Balikpapan

ABSTRACT

The aim of this paper is to find out about the grammatical agreement errors in writing compositions made by the 6th semester students. To achieve that purpose, the data were derived from several writing compositions from the 6th semester students. In which the writing compositions are research papers. The result shows that from the 3 categories of grammatical agreement, Subject-Verb agreement is one of the grammatical agreement categories which the most frequent error.

Keywords : grammatical agreement, error, subject-verb agreement

1. Background

Generally writing is both very important for adult learners and is often very difficult. According to Tarigan (1985: 5) writing is productive skills for writing an indirect communication and the nature of the character is very different from that expressed by speaking directly, therefore writing is included an ability. Writing in a foreign language is one of the most difficult skills for more or less all learners. Developing writing skill is considered highly complex if not the most complex in relationship with listening, speaking and reading. What makes writing a very bothersome task for EFL learners is the fact that it requires some criterion of acceptability relative to different aspects of writing which include content, organization, vocabulary, language use, spelling, punctuation and accurate capitalization and paragraphing. Brooks and Penn (1970: 20) also state, for one thing, in writing, we must understand the structure of the Language, what the parts of speech do, how the words relate to one another, what individual words mean, the rules of grammar and punctuation.

Furthermore, writing is different from other skills; it can be said as the combination of all skills. Heaton (1975:127) stated that writing composition is a task, which involves the students in manipulating word in grammatically correct sentences and in linking those sentences to form a piece of continuous writing which successfully communicates their writer thoughts and ideas of certain topic. To make a good writing, it must be constructed according to rules or conventions of target language. Learners must apply the five general components of the writing process; content, form, grammar, style, and mechanic.

Grammar is an essential part of the use of language process, both in spoken and written language. According to Jeffrey Coghill and Stacy Magendanz (2003: XVI) The grammar of a language is the set of rules that govern its structure. Grammar Determines how words are arranged to form meaningful units. So it would be impossible to learn language effectively without knowing the grammar, because grammar helps learners to identify grammatical forms, which serves to enhance and sharpen the expression of meaning. The importance of grammar is also strengthened by Mr. Kalend O. He states "Having a good grammar system of a language, learners will be helpful in delivering their ideas, messages and feelings either to the listeners or readers, language without grammar would be disorganized and causes some communicative problems, for example we can not say something in passive sentence using English if we do not know the grammar concept of passive voice". Writing and grammar experts are individuals who excel at arranging words to phrases, phrases to sentences, sentences to paragraphs and paragraphs into a complete written work. These works are both pleasing to read and correct as to the structural rules that make up the composition. It is sad that one cannot be an
