

What I've found:

Every day I hear and see so much of "I, or you, deserve this or that."
When I think that I deserve something, I must truly have done something special....whether good or bad!

What I've found, is that more often than not though, we tend to use the "I deserve..." phrase for something really good, a special treat.

Sometimes we get things because it is our right to receive them...that then, however, implies a legal entitlement. It is, apparently far easier to say, seemingly barrierlessly, that one "deserves" something.

Wouldn't it be a truly special something if, instead of thinking about getting so many more "good things", we changed our mindsets and actions to giving them ?

As Winston Churchill so succinctly said: "We make a living by what we get, but we make a life by what we give."
