

Christian Theism, New Spiritualism and Pantheism

Topic: Religion | Words: 2054 | Pages: 7

Introduction

In today's society, it is clear that there are various perspectives on the world. Many individuals believe that there is a greater power known as God (Christians), and others believe that the government should be the highest mode of authority (Marxists/Communists). While other groups suppose that, there should be no religion in the world (Secularists), and other individuals view themselves as the highest power (New Spiritualists). The disintegration of New Spiritualism, also known as Pantheism, and Christian theism will be covered in this debate. Only when a worldview is dissected and analyzed without bias can one determine its significance and actuality.

The Central Concern in New Spiritualism and Christian Theism

Christianity's main argument is that there is only one God, who created both Heaven and Earth. In contrast, the fundamental tenet of modern spiritualism is that there is no single God; rather, each person is their god, making up the entire world. One of Christianity's central tenets is that Christians must have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ as a condition of salvation and access to heaven ("Holy Bible: New International Version," 2017, John 14:6). The main tenet of the new spiritualism, however, is that Jesus is not a means of entering eternal life, but rather an example of how to live. Christians view the Bible as the true Word of God but in the eyes of New Spirituality, the Bible is just another book with no more relevance than any other literature a person
