Bathing The Body And Community Care:

Bathing--the Body and Community Care Julia Twigg,2000 This book examines the work of a major employment group within the health and welfare field It relates to debates on the body and issues associated with disability personal space and autonomy and the power of dynamics of care Bathing - the Body and Community Care Julia Twigg,2002-01-04 Community care lies at the intersection of day to day life and the public world of service provision Using the lens of one particular activity bathing this book explores what happens when the public world of professionals and service provision enters the lives of older and disabled people In doing so it addresses wider issues concerning the management of the body the meaning of carework and the significance of body care in the ordering of daily life Bathing the Body and Community Care provides an engaging text for students and will be of interest to a wide range of audiences both social science and health science students and nursing and allied professionals Bathing, the Body and Community Care J. Twigg,Economic and Social Research Council,2000 Body Work in Health and Social Care Julia Twigg,Carol Wolkowitz,Rachel Lara Cohen,Sarah Nettleton,2011-09-07 The first book to fully explore the multiple ways in which body work features in health and social care and the meanings of this work both for those employed to do it and those on whose bodies they work Explores the commonalities between different sectors of work including those outside health and social care Contributions come from an international range of experts Draws on perspectives from across the medical therapeutic and care fields Incorporates a variety of methodological approaches from life history analysis to ethnographic studies and first person accounts Cultural Gerontology Lars Andersson,2002-11-30 The concept of culture has gained considerable attention within the humanities and social sciences in general and this is certainly true in the field of gerontology The new perspectives thus gained widen the scope of gerontology In this study chapter authors examine the growth of gerontology as a discipline the phenomenon of ageism as a socio cultural concept identity politics in which older persons are perceived as belonging to a subculture and images of the older body in cultural perspective The manner in which gerontology emerged as a discipline was embedded in culturally defined views of aging that had consequences for how it was seen to vary between cultures One consequence was a perception of ageism as a cultural construction Since the 1980s much of the politics of older people is a form of identity politics in which groups are mobilized to further their interests Questions of cultural meanings ascribed to the gendered aging body is a central question for ageism social identity and self image These questions become especially relevant in confrontations with bodily decline and negotiations of intimacy in institutions for older people The Body in Health and Social Care Julia Twigg,2006-03-29 Focusing on health and social care this book shows how important the body can be to a range of issues such as disability old age sexuality consumption food and public space Twigg illustrates how constructions of the body affect how we see different social groups and explores the significance of it in the provision and delivery of care

Embodiment and Agency Sue Campbell,Letitia Maynell,2010-11-01 Aging Bodies Christopher A.

Faircloth,2003-06-11 Western thought traditionally divides the human being into a body mind dualism a divide realized in the divergent research fields of geriatrics and gerontology the first examines the physical body and the second focuses instead upon psychological and social aspects of aging Research Health Scientist Christopher Faircloth s edited volume of original pieces attempts to bridge this rift reinserting the physical aging body and its lived experiences back into gerontology s study of aging He asks Is it not the physical body that readily marks us as aging Faircloth organizes this text around two major themes of the aging body everyday experience and the social and personal impact of its imagery while concentrating on three areas of substantive concern medicalization gender sexuality and the body as consumer This book would be of interest to gerontologists social scientists and students of these fields concerned with the aging body both object and subject as experienced and alternatively perceived in relation to contemporary society Home Care for Ageing Populations Martha Doyle, Virpi Timonen,2007 This book presents an up to date comparative analysis of formal domiciliary care systems in Denmark Germany and the United States It makes an important contribution to the debate about the future care of older people and provides an insightful analysis of the provision of publicly funded domiciliary care services from a cross national perspective The areas addressed include classifications of welfare state and social care regimes the changing role of the state as a provider and purchaser of social care services the re commodification of the care labour force incentives for informal care givers via public financing and social security and the introduction of notions of consumer power into care policies Forthcoming Books Rose Army,2001
