Battleship North Carolina:

Battleship North Carolina (BB-55) Ben W. Blee, Frank S. Conlon, 1982 Battleship North Carolina \(BB-55\) Ben W. Blee, Frank S. Conlon, 1982 Boys of the Battleship North Carolina Cindy Horrell Ramsey, 2007 On July 11 1942 the USS North Carolina steamed into Pearl Harbor She was a magnificent ship the first in a new class of battleships simultaneously monstrous and fast She was two and a half football fields long and so wide she could barely pass through the Panama Canal on her journey to Hawaii At any given time 2 339 sailors manned the ship a total of more than 7 000 during the six years she served As she glided into the ravaged harbor past the wreckage of sunken American ships the morale of the men in the surviving Pacific fleet soared A little over two years earlier more than 57 000 people had gathered in the Brooklyn Navy Yard on the day she was launched As she went through her shakedown period she returned repeatedly to that same naval yard for adjustments and modifications Many New Yorkers including radio commentator Walter Winchell often witnessed the ship entering and departing New York Harbor and began calling her the Showboat In this book Ramsey tells the story of the battleship through the eyes of the men who served her After doing research about the ship at the National Archives in 2000 Ramsey spent six days helping the staff of the memorial compile a living history archive of personal interviews conducted with the surviving crewmembers when they attended the ship's annual reunion She became fascinated with the stories these men told For the next few years she continued talking to the men to flesh out their stories The result is this narrative about one of the most decorated American battleships in World War II as seen through the eyes of the young sailors who matured into men while manning this floating fortress Publisher USS North Carolina \(BB-55\) David Doyle, 2018 As lead ship of America's first fast battleship class and the US Navy's newest battleship when America entered WWII the construction of the USS North Carolina was not only a source of encouragement for a depression wrought nation but was also a source of pride among a fleet of aging battleships Earning fifteen Battle Stars the North Carolina is America's most decorated battleship having participated in most of the major campaigns in the Pacific during WWII This volume documents not only the construction and wartime exploits of this historic vessel but thoroughly explores the restored vessel providing a great resource for the armchair historian a keepsake for those who visit the museum ship and a superb resource for the detailed model builder Carefully researched photos many of which have never before been published are reproduced in remarkable clarity and put the reader on and beneath the decks of this historic warship Part of the Legends of Warfare series USS North Carolina David Doyle, 2011-01-01 North Carolina Class Battleships Source Wikipedia, 2013-09 Please note that the content of this book primarily consists of articles available from Wikipedia or other free sources online Pages 23 Chapters North Carolina class battleship USS Washington USS North Carolina Excerpt The North Carolina class was a group of two fast battleships North Carolina and Washington built for the United States Navy in the late 1930s and early 1940s The navy was originally uncertain whether the ships should be fast enough to counter the Japanese Kong class which was believed by the United States to be capable of 26 knots 30 mph 48 km h or should sacrifice speed for additional firepower and armor The Second London Naval Treaty s requirement that all capital ships have a standard displacement of under 35 000 long tons 35 560 metric tons meant that the desired objectives could not be fully realized within the treaty limits and the navy considered over fifty designs before one was chosen Towards the end of this lengthy design period the General Board of the United States Navy declared that it was in favor of design XVI C which called for a speed of 30 knots 35 mph 56 km h and a main battery of nine 14 inch 356 mm 50 caliber Mark B guns The board believed that such ships could fulfill a multitude of roles as they would have enough protection to be put into a battle line while also having enough speed to escort aircraft carriers or engage in commerce raiding However the acting Secretary of the Navy authorized a modified version of a different design XVI which in its original form had been rejected by the General Board This called for a 27 knot 31 mph 50 km h ship with twelve 14 inch rifles in quadruple turrets and protection against guns of the same caliber In a major departure from traditional American design practices XVI accepted lower speed and protection in exchange for maximum firepower After construction had begun the United States became concerned over Japan s refusal to commit to the
