Aging And Everyday Life:

Ageing in Everyday Life Stephen Katz, 2019-10-09 Applying interdisciplinary perspectives about everyday life to vital issues in the lives of older people this book maps together the often taken for granted aspects of what it means to age in an ageist society Part of the Ageing in a Global Context series the two parts address the materialities and the embodiments of everyday life respectively Topics covered include household possessions public and private spaces older drivers media representations dementia care health tracking dress and sexuality This focus on micro sociological conditions allows us to rethink key questions which have shaped debates in the social aspects of ageing International contributions including from the UK USA Sweden and Canada provide a critical guide to inform thinking and planning our ageing futures Aging and Everyday Life Jaber F. Gubrium, James A. Holstein, 2000-09-11 Aging and Everyday Life presents a balanced and realistic view of the aging experience The research in this book reveals that much if not most of the triumphs and trials experienced in later years are not unlike those confronted at other points in life Just like younger people the elderly experience both change and stability shedding old roles and entering new ones The process takes place in varied spheres of life the worlds of home and family work and friendship This thoughtful engaging text brings together twenty eight essays by leading researchers in social gerontology to explore the everyday aspects of aging Readers will come away viewing the elderly as people whose lives are as complex and diverse and therefore as nuanced as any Ageing selves and everyday life in the north of England Cathrine Degnen, 2018-02-28 Seeking to explore what it means to grow older in contemporary Britain from the perspective of older people themselves this richly detailed ethnographic study engages in debates over selfhood and people's relationships with time Based on research conducted in a former coal mining village in South Yorkshire England Cathrine Degnen explores how the category of old age comes to be assigned and experienced in everyday life through multiple registers of interaction including that of social memory in a postindustrial context of great social transformation Challenging both the notion of a homogenous relationship with time across generations and the idea of a universalised middle aged self Degnen argues that the complex interplay of social cultural and physical attributes of ageing means that older people can come to have a different position in relation to time and to the self than younger people unseating normative conventions about narrative and temporality The Neuropsychology of Everyday Life: Assessment and Basic Competencies David E. Tupper, Keith D. Cicerone, 2012-12-06 For a period of some fifteen years following completion of my internship training in clinical psychology 1950-1951 at the Washington University School of Medicine and my concurrent successful navigation through that school's neuroanatomy course clinical work in neuropsychology for me and the psychologists of my generation consisted almost exclusively of trying to help our physician colleagues differentiate patients with neurologic from those with psychiatric disorders In time experience led all of us from the several disciplines involved in this enterprise to the conclusion that the crude diagnostic techniques available to us circa 1945-1965 had garnered us little valid information upon which to base such complex differential diagnostic decisions It now is gratifying to look back and review the remarkable progress that has occurred in the field of clinical neuropsychology in the four decades since I was a graduate student In the late 1940s such pioneers as Ward Halstead Alexander Luria George Yacorzynski Hans Lukas Teuber and Arthur Benton already were involved in clinical studies that by the late 1960s would markedly have improved the quality of clinical practice However the only psychological tests that the clinical psychologist of my immediate post Second World War generation had as aids for the diagnosis of neurologically based conditions involving cognitive deficit were such old standbys as the Wechsler Bellevue Rorschach Draw A Person Bender Gestalt and Graham Kendall Memory for Designs Test

Active and Healthy Aging and Quality of Life: Interventions and Outlook for the Future

Yulan Lin, Waqas Sami, Mila Nu Nu Htay, Sudip Bhattacharya, 2024-04-15 The continuous growth of older adult populations as a consequence of demographic changes is a huge challenge To prevent costly and negative impacts effects on the population as a whole it is crucial that societies increase their knowledge of promoting good health among older adults to promote good health and a better quality of life in their later years Active aging is the process of optimizing opportunities for health participation and security in order to enhance quality of life as people age An active and healthy life has remained one of the most important aspirations for all people both young and older adults alike This ambition has become a genuine possibility for many due to a rising life expectancy among people of diverse attributes across the world While celebrating longer life and with more financial security in later life than ever before we need to challenge how these aspirations can be sustained through our own behavioural responses and through public policy institutional reforms and innovations The challenge is to identify recommend and promote strategies and interventions that stimulate and sustain the activity independence and health of people of all ages especially older adults and in the process promote the well being and quality of life of people and make public welfare systems more sustainable
