

The Lost Colony of Roanoke

Key Terms

- colony
- settler
- settlers
- Roanoke
- settled

The legend of the lost colony of Roanoke has been told for generations. In 1585, Sir Walter Raleigh sent John White and 117 English settlers to Roanoke Island. The island is part of what is now North Carolina.

White brought his daughter, Eleanor Dare, and her husband, Ananias Dare. Eleanor was due to give birth soon.

On August 18, 1585, Eleanor Dare gave birth to the first English child born in the new colony. She named her daughter Virginia Dare.

On August 23, 1585, John White returned to England for more supplies. It would be three years before he would return to Roanoke Island.

John White returned to Roanoke Island on Virginia's third birthday in 1590. The colony was deserted. There were no colonists or no signs of an attack. The only evidence was the word "Croatoan" carved into a wooden post.

To this day, no one knows for sure what happened to the people on Roanoke Island. Some believe they left with the Croatoan people. Others think the colonists may have gone to the Chesapeake Bay. However, there has been little evidence to support these ideas.

Interesting Facts

- There was not one other "lost" colony before 1585 on Roanoke Island.
- Most of what we know comes from written records. Very little evidence like tools or everyday items were found.
- There was another baby born after Virginia Dare.
