The Lancashire Working Classes c.1880-1930 Trevor Griffiths, 2001-10-04 This book examines the experiences and values which shaped working class life in Britain in the half century from 1880 It takes as its focus a region Lancashire which was central to the social and political changes of the period The discussion centres on two towns Bolton and Wigan which while they were geographically close differed significantly in their industrial fortunes and their electoral development The formation of class identity is traced through developments in the world of work from the impact of technological and managerial innovations to the elaboration of collective bargaining procedures Beyond work particular attention is paid to the dynamics of neighbourhood and family life the latter emerging as an important source of continuity in working class life The broader impact of such influences are traced through a close examination of the electoral politics of the period Dr Griffiths conclusions fundamentally challenge the notion that the fifty years around the turn of the century witnessed the emergence of a working class more culturally and politically united than at any other time either before or since Rather an alternative narrative of class development is offered in which broad continuities in working class life in particular the survival of religious ethnic and occupational points of division are emphasised Despite the presence of strong and stable labour institutions from trade unions to Co operative and Friendly Societies the picture emerges of a working class more individualist than collectivist in outlook more flexible in response to economic change and less constrained by the broader solidarities of work and neighbourhood than has previously been supposed

Lancashire Cotton Operatives and Work, 1900-1950 Alan Fowler, 2018-10-24 This title was first published in 2003 The cotton industry was one of the major motors that powered Britain's industrial development from the mid eighteenth century contributing in no small way to the revolution that was to transform Europe over the next hundred years The combination of technological developments colonial exploits and social transformation that all came together in the Lancashire cotton industry provided a perfect example of how the new world would function its priorities and its ambitions Into this fast moving and fluid situation were thrust the men women and children who formed the vast pool of labour necessary to keep the spindles and looms running It is their experiences above all that illuminates the history of the cotton industry and how it came to change the face of Britain through the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries In this study Alan Fowler takes an in depth look at the Lancashire cotton industry through the prism of its workers their families and organisations He argues that by 1850 the triumph of the factory system was complete and the factory operative a mainstay of a transformed society based on a new economic order With this increasingly important role in the new economy came opportunities which cotton workers were not slow to grasp Crucial to the history of the Lancashire cotton operatives were the collective organisations they established which forced employers and government to treat with them By the beginning of the twentieth century these organisations had managed to raise wages improve working conditions reduce working hours establish the right to holidays and force the introduction of factory legislation This book explores how these victories were won and the impact they had on the industry and wider society Bright Morning Don Haworth,1993-01-01

The Silence of Memory Adrian Gregory,2014-03-04 This book examines how the British people came to terms with the massive trauma of the First World War Although the literary memory of the war has often been discussed little has been written on the public ceremonies on and around 11 November which dominated the public memory of the war in the inter war years This book aims to remedy the deficiency by showing the pre eminence of Armistice Day both in reflecting what people felt about the war and in shaping their memories of it It shows that this memory was complex rather than simple and that it was continually contested Finally it seeks to examine the impact of the Second World War on the memory of the First and to show how difficult it is to recapture the idealistic assumptions of a world that believed it had experienced the war to end all wars

The Car and British Society Sean O'Connell,1998 The car was first introduced into British society over one hundred years ago Sean O Connell s study of the social impact of the car offers a radical new way of looking at the history of motoring

The European Miracle Eric Lionel Jones,2003-08-04 Why modern states and economies developed in Europe first and later in India and China

Transactions of the Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquarian Society Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquarian Society,1995 Includes the Society s proceedings and list of members

The British working class in postwar film Philip Gillett,2019-01-04 An incidental pleasure of watching a film is what it tells us about the society in which it is made Using a sociological model The British working class in postwar film looks at how working class people were portrayed in British feature films in the decade after the Second World War Though some of the films examined are well known others have been forgotten and deserve reassessment Original statistical data is used to assess the popularity of the films with audiences With its interdisciplinary approach and the avoidance of jargon this book seeks to broaden the approach to film studies Students of media and cultural studies are introduced to the skills of other disciplines while sociologists and historians are encouraged to consider the value of film evidence in their own fields This work should appeal to all readers interested in social history and in how cinema and society works
