LESLIE GOULD

A woman in Amish attire, including a white bonnet and a dark vest over a purple long-sleeved shirt, stands in a field of tall, golden-brown grass. In the background, there is a wooden fence, a white barn, and rolling hills under a warm, hazy sky. The woman is looking off to the side with a gentle expression.

What's the Worst That Could Happen? Andrew Leigh, 2024-08-06 Why catastrophic risks are more dangerous than you think and how populism makes them worse Did you know that you're more likely to die from a catastrophe than in a car crash The odds that a typical US resident will die from a catastrophic event for example nuclear war bioterrorism or out of control artificial intelligence have been estimated at 1 in 6 That's fifteen times more likely than a fatal car crash and thirty one times more likely than being murdered In What's the Worst That Could Happen Andrew Leigh looks at catastrophic risks and how to mitigate them arguing provocatively that the rise of populist politics makes catastrophe more likely Leigh explains that pervasive short term thinking leaves us unprepared for long term risks Politicians sweat the small stuff granular policy details of legislation and regulation but rarely devote much attention to reducing long term risks Populist movements thrive on short termism because they focus on their followers immediate grievances Leigh argues that we should be long termers broaden our thinking and give big threats the attention and resources they need Leigh outlines the biggest existential risks facing humanity and suggests remedies for them He discusses pandemics considering the possibility that the next virus will be more deadly than COVID 19 warns that unchecked climate change could render large swaths of the earth uninhabitable describes the metamorphosis of the arms race from a fight into a chaotic brawl and examines the dangers of runaway superintelligence Moreover Leigh points out populism and its crony totalitarianism not only exacerbates other dangers but is also a risk factor in itself undermining the institutions of democracy as we watch Intersectionality Anna Carastathis, 2016-11-01 A 2017 Choice Outstanding Academic Title Intersectionality intervenes in the field of intersectionality studies the integrative examination of the effects of racial gendered and class power on people's lives While intersectionality circulates as a buzzword Anna Carastathis joins other critical voices to urge a more careful reading Challenging the narratives of arrival that surround it Carastathis argues that intersectionality is a horizon illuminating ways of thinking that have yet to be realized consequently calls to go beyond intersectionality are premature A provisional interpretation of intersectionality can disorient habits of essentialism categorial purity and prototypicality and overcome dynamics of segregation and subordination in political movements Through a close reading of critical race theorist Kimberl Williams Crenshaw's germinal texts published more than twenty five years ago Carastathis urges analytic clarity contextual rigor and a politicized historicized understanding of this widely traveling concept Intersectionality's roots in social justice movements and critical intellectual projects specifically Black feminism must be retraced and synthesized with a decolonial analysis so its radical potential to actualize coalitions can be enacted
