B. Ellis,2019-12-03 In The History of the First West India Regiment A B Ellis meticulously chronicles the formation experiences and legacy of one of the British Army s most significant colonial regiments This historical account unfolds with a blend of narrative and analytical prose providing insights into military strategies social dynamics and the cultural exchanges between colonizers and the Caribbean peoples Set against the backdrop of Britain s imperial ambitions during the 18th and 19th centuries Ellis s work reflects a critical understanding of the complexities surrounding colonialism and its repercussions in West Indian society A B Ellis a foremost scholar in colonial military history draws upon an extensive range of primary sources including military records and personal correspondence to offer a comprehensive perspective His background as a historian and his deep interest in the cultural ramifications of colonial rule have greatly informed his writing This text is not merely a military history it is also an exploration of identity loyalty and the human experiences underpinning historical events revealing why the First West India Regiment remains a pivotal subject in discussions of colonial legacy Scholars students and history enthusiasts alike will find Ellis s work to be an invaluable resource that combines rigorous research with engaging storytelling As a reflection on the intersection of military history and colonial studies the book merits a place on the bookshelf of anyone interested in the complexities of empire identity and the Caribbean s historical narrative Mess Night Traditions Charles J.

Gibowicz,2007-09 This book is about the military Sea Service Mess Night the Sea Services consisting of the Navy Marines and Coast Guard Mess Nights are traditional time honored events going back to at least the 18th Century Formal military dining has historically been a way to communicate to celebrate special events and a way to promote unity and camaraderie The Mess Night although a military formation and a formal event is also a great deal of fun Some of today s protocol and script is not exactly matching the past Today s Mess Night is a bit more regimented and programmed but basically reflects all that was included in the old days and also reflects some of procedures used during the days of sail This book is written because there are no books on Mess Nights this is a first Like many Sea Service customs and traditions this custom has been handed down from generation to generation unwritten Scripts and instructions were not necessary as Mess dinners were common The British Navy can claim a continuous unbroken tradition and they are basically the providers of the American tradition They host Mess dinners much more frequently than the Americans do and the entire Navy traditionally celebrates the anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar Americans have no set celebration and also have fewer Mess Nights Many officers are not even aware of Mess Nights This is because of several factors covered in the book Hopefully this book will stimulate greater interest in this important event As the alcohol rule for ships rule has been loosened it is particularly hopeful that shipboard Mess Nights can again become an event It would be most appropriate to celebrate the event for which the ship is named or to begin the tradition of celebrating Navy Day or other famous event such as those listed in this book

Historical Record of The Queen's Own Gurkha Logistic Regiment, 1958-2018 J. R. Cawthorne,2023-01-31 The Gurkha Army Service Corps the predecessor of The Queen s Own Gurkha Logistic Regiment was raised in Singapore in 1958 ten years after the transfer of Gurkha regiments from the Indian Army to the British Army and towards the end of the Malayan Emergency Within four years of being formed it was committed to continuous operations in Brunei and Borneo

during Confrontation with Indonesia between 1962-66. It was also redesignated the Gurkha Transport Regiment in 1965 to reflect changes to the Army's logistic structure. Between 1966-71 the Regiment was substantially reduced in size along with the rest of The Brigade of Gurkhas as Britain withdrew its forces from East of Suez. Concentrated in Hong Kong the Regiment provided transport support to the Garrison for the next 20 years. In 1991 a composite squadron was sent to reinforce British Forces in the Gulf War after which in preparation for the handback of Hong Kong to China the Regiment moved to and became permanently stationed in the UK. In recognition of its past services it was granted the royal title The Queen's Own Gurkha Transport Regiment in 1992. The following two decades saw it undertake multiple operational tours to the Balkans, Iraq, Cyprus and Afghanistan as well as providing humanitarian assistance to the Ebola crisis in Sierra Leone. It also expanded both its role to incorporate supply and catering and its size which led in 2001 to it being redesignated to its current title The Queen's Own Gurkha Logistic Regiment. This history records the events and activities of the Regiment during its first 60 years of service to the Crown. While of wider interest to military historians it is principally written for members of the Regiment past, present and future.
