

British Policy towards West Africa

C.W. Newbury

Select Documents 1875—1914
With Statistical Appendices 1800—1914

This volume continues the documentation of British relations with West Africa from the period of the Ashanti war to the amalgamation of Nigeria. The format follows the pattern laid down in volume I, 1786-1874, with special sections on the response of African societies to British investment and control, imperial expansion into the interior, jurisdiction and administrative consolidation, the formation of the West African Frontier Force, and Economic Development (including trade, tariffs, railways, roads, harbours, land, agriculture and mining). Introductory Notes provide an outline of the main aspects of policy in each section.

A series of Statistical Appendices covering the period of both volumes I and II have been prepared from archival and published sources to illustrate the values of British trade with Western Africa as a whole and the trade, revenue and expenditure of the four British possessions, Gambia, Sierra Leone, Gold Coast and Nigeria.
